

CONTENTS

Preface
Introduction	1
PART I MARXISM AND PHENOMENOLOGY	7
1. The Possibility of a Synthesis	9
Defining the Synthesis	9
Basic Traditions in Marx and Husserl	14
Idealism, Materialism and the Natural Attitude	17
Dialectical Materialism and Subjective Idealism	19
The Kantian Legacy	24
Duality and Dialectic	29
2. Hegel, Marx and Husserl	35
The Idealist Tradition	36
Phenomenology in Hegel and Husserl	38
The Concept of Totality	42
Hegelian Marxism in Lukács	46
Hegelian Themes in Sartre and Kojève	50
The Structure of Consciousness	52
PART II THE CRISIS OF SCIENCE AND THE ANALYSIS OF CAPITALISM	59
3. Structure and Scientificity	61
The Structuralist Synthesis	62
Science and Ideology in Althusser and Foucault	66
Structure, System and Totality	71
Scientific Realism and Phenomenology	74
Structure, Consciousness and Causality	79

Contents

4. The Crisis of Science	91
The Concept of Crisis	92
Scientificity in Marx and Husserl	96
Theorising the Life-world	101
Alienation and the Ontological Question	108
Teleology and Causality	113
PART III THE SYNTHESIS OF MARXISM AND PHENOMENOLOGY	123
5. The Question of History	125
Historicity in Husserl	126
Historicism and Hermeneutics	129
Historico-genetic Analysis in Marx and Husserl	135
Time, Sedimentation and Language	141
Consciousness and History in Existentialist Marxism	147
6. Conclusion: Phenomenological Marxism	159
The Nature of the Synthesis	160
Phenomenological Marxism - The Contribution of Enzo Paci	171
Towards Husserlian Marxism	178
Glossary	187
Bibliography	193
Index	197