

Contents

Introduction 3

1. Psychology and Personal Identity 7

I. Human Vegetables and Cerebrum Transplants 7

II. The Psychological Approach 11

III. The Biological Approach 16

2. Persistence 22

I. Criteria of Personal Identity 22

II. Substance Concepts 27

III. Movers and Thinkers 31

IV. "Person P1 at Time t1" 37

3. Why We Need Not Accept the Psychological Approach 42

I. The Transplant Intuition 42

II. Whole-Brain Transplants 44

III. Fission and Hemispherectomy 46

IV. Prudential Concern 52

V. Moral Responsibility 57

VI. The Treatment Argument 63

VII. Same Person 65

VIII. Practical Consequences of the Biological Approach 70

4. Was I Ever a Fetus? 73

I. The Fetus Problem 73

II. Playing the Problem Down 76

- III. Future-Directed Identity and Disjunctive Criteria 81
- IV. Second-Order Capacities 85
- V. When Did I Begin? 89
- 5. Are People Animals? 94
 - I. Human People or Human Animals? 94
 - II. Appearances 95
 - III. Coincidence 97
 - IV. Personhood 102
 - V. Why We Are Animals 106
 - VI. Psychological Persistence Conditions for Animals? 109
 - VII. Death and Ceasing to Be 111
 - VIII. A Counterattack 120
- 6. The Biological Approach 124
 - I. Further Questions 124
 - II. Organisms 126
 - III. The Identity of Organisms 131
 - IV. Lives 135
 - V. Brainstem Replacements and Other Difficulties 140
 - VI. The Bodily Criterion 142
- 7. Alternatives 154
 - I. Are There Any People? 154
 - II. Relative Identity 159
 - III. Temporal Parts 162
- Notes 169
- References 179
- Index 187