

Contents

Introduction: Hubert Dreyfus and the Phenomenology of Human Intelligence Mark A. Wrathall	1
---	---

Part I. The Phenomenology of Skills

1. From Socrates to Expert Systems: The Limits of Calculative Rationality (1985) Hubert L. Dreyfus and Stuart E. Dreyfus	25
--	----

Part II. Intentionality and Mind

2. The Perceptual Noema: Gurwitsch's Crucial Contribution (1972)	47
3. Heidegger's Critique of the Husserl/Searle Account of Intentionality (1993)	76
4. Todes's Account of Nonconceptual Perceptual Knowledge and its Relation to Thought (2001)	92
5. Overcoming the Myth of the Mental: How Philosophers Can Profit from the Phenomenology of Everyday Expertise (2005)	104

Part III. Phenomenology and the Human Sciences

6. Holism and Hermeneutics (1980)	127
7. The Primacy of Phenomenology over Logical Analysis (2001)	146
8. From Depth Psychology to Breadth Psychology: A Phenomenological Approach to Psychopathology (1988) Hubert L. Dreyfus and Jerome Wakefield	168
9. What is Moral Maturity? Towards a Phenomenology of Ethical Expertise (1992) Hubert L. Dreyfus and Stuart E. Dreyfus	183

Part IV. Embodied Coping and Artificial Intelligence

10. Making a Mind versus Modeling the Brain: Artificial Intelligence Back at a Branchpoint (1988) Hubert L. Dreyfus and Stuart E. Dreyfus	205
11. Merleau-Ponty and Recent Cognitive Science (2004)	231
12. Why Heideggerian AI Failed and How Fixing it Would Require Making it More Heideggerian (2007)	249
Bibliography	275
Index	285