

Contents

Introduction	1
1. Choice-dependent obligations	3
2. Normative interests	6
3. Making sense	12
4. Deontic value	17
Part I: Interests
1. Blame and Guilt	25
5. Blame as anger	27
6. Aptness and accuracy	31
7. Blame without anger?	34
8. The scope of blame and the nature of guilt	40
2. Wronging	44
9. Wrongs and wrongings	45
10. Wrongings and forgiveness	51
11. Remissive interests	58
12. Wrongings and interests	61
3. Obligation	68
13. The sanction theory	70
14. Scanlon on wrong	73
15. Policies and habits	76
16. The conscientious agent	85
17. Blame, exclusion, and conflicts of obligation	89
4. Obligation and Involvement	96
18. Friendship and other forms of involvement	97
19. Custom, choice, and involvement	100
20. Friendship and benefaction	104
21. Involvements and deontic interests	111
22. Conclusion to Part I	117
Part II: Powers
5. The Problem with Promising	123
23. The problem of bare wrongdoing	123
24. The problem of normative power	127

25. Practice theories: Hume and Rawls	129
26. Social co-ordination	136
6. The Promissory Interest	142
27. The function of a promise	143
28. The authority interest	146
29. Promises and practices	150
30. Obligation and convention	153
31. The genealogy of promise	159
7. The Possibility of Consent	164
32. Consent and choice	165
33. Consent and normative interests	172
34. Permissive interests	176
35. Conclusion to Part II	182
Part III: Practices
8. What is a Promise?	189
36. Promising and normative powers	190
37. The purity of promising: prophylactic promises	196
38. The purity of promising: promises assuming release	198
39. Diagnosis	202
40. When have we promised?	205
9. The Promissory Bond	208
41. Predicting and promising	208
42. The expectation theory: Scanlon	213
43. The relational structure of a promise	219
44. The solemnity of a promise	226
10. Which Promises Bind?	231
45. Wronging the promisor	232
46. The fragility of a promise	236
47. Voluntariness and normative interests	240
48. Promising to do what you ought not to do	245
Conclusion	250
References	252
Index	257