

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

1. The preparation of this book	vii
2. Defects of the Politics	viii
3. The aporetic method	ix
4. Value of the Politics	xii
5. The Subject of the Politics	xv
6. Aristotle on the end of the city	xvii
7. Critique of Aristotle's paternalism	xxii
8. The translation	xxvii

TRANSLATION AND COMMENT

III. 1-5. THE CITIZEN

III. 1, 2. Who is a citizen?	3
III. 3. What makes the identity of a city?	8
III. 4. Is the good man identical with the good citizen?	10
III. 5. Are the workman and the labourer citizens?	15

III. 6-8. THE KINDS OF CONSTITUTION

III. 6, 7. The kinds of constitution	19
III. 8. Democracy and oligarchy	25

III. 9-13. JUSTICE

III. 9. The purpose of a city	28
III. 10. Who should be the sovereign?	33
III. 11. The masses	36
III. 12. Justice	40
III. 13. The outstanding man	43

III. 14-18. KING OR LAW?

III. 14. Five kinds of kingship	49
---------------------------------	----

III. 15. Arguments against kingship	53
III. 16. Arguments for the rule of law	58
III. 17. Sometimes kingship is right	62
III. 18. The education of a king	64
IV. 1-2. POLITICAL SCIENCE
IV. 1-2. The objects of political science	67
IV. 3-7. KINDS OF CONSTITUTION
IV. 3. Why there are several kinds of constitution	73
IV. 4. Parts of a city and kinds of democracy	74
IV. 5. Kinds of oligarchy	83
IV. 6. Kinds of democracy and oligarchy	84
IV. 7. Kinds of aristocracy	86
IV. 8-13. 'CONSTITUTIONAL' GOVERNMENT
IV. 8. 'Constitution'	88
IV. 9. How to establish 'constitution'	91
IV. 10. Kinds of tyranny	94
IV. 11. The middle constitution	95
IV. 12. Suiting the constitution to the citizens	103
IV. 13. The constitution of the men at arms	107
IV. 14-16. WAYS OF APPOINTING OFFICERS
IV. 14. The deliberative part of the constitution	112
IV. 15. The offices	117
IV. 16. The judges	122
SUPPLEMENTARY ESSAY	125
SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY	149
INDEX	153