Contents

1. Introduction
   AMY E. DEN OUDEN & JEAN M. O'BRIEN

PART I  Race, Identity, and Recognition

37. The Imposition of Law
   The Federal Acknowledgment Process and the Legal De/Construction of Tribal Identity
   ANGELA A. GONZALES & TIMOTHY Q. EVANS

65. Racial Science and Federal Recognition
   Lumbee Indians in the Jim Crow South
   MALINDA MAYNOR LOWERY

95. The Recognition of NAGPRA
   A Human Rights Promise Deferred
   JOANNE BARKER

115. State Recognition of American Indian Tribes
   A Survey of State-Recognized Tribes and State Recognition Processes
   K. ALEXA KOENIG & JONATHAN STEIN

PART II  State and Federal Recognition in New England

149. State Recognition and “Termination” in Nineteenth-Century New England
   JEAN M. O'BRIEN

169. Altered State?
   Indian Policy Narratives, Federal Recognition, and the “New” War on Native Rights in Connecticut
   AMY E. DEN OUDEN
195 How You See Us, Why You Don't Connecticut’s Public Policy to Terminate the Schaghticoke Indians
RUTH GARBY TORRES

213 The Nipmuc Nation, Federal Acknowledgment, and a Case of Mistaken Identity
RAE GOULD

PART III Contemporary Recognition Controversies

237 A Right Delayed
The Brothertown Indian Nation’s Story of Surviving the Federal Acknowledgment Process
KATHLEEN A. BROWN-PEREZ

263 From “Boston Men” to the BIA
The Unacknowledged Chinook Nation
JOHN R. ROBINSON

287 Mapping Erasure
The Power of Nominative Cartography in the Past and Present of the Muwekma Ohlones of the San Francisco Bay Area
LES W. FIELD with Alan Leventhal & Rosemary Cambra

311 Precarious Positions
Native Hawaiians and U.S. Federal Recognition
J. KÉHULAÔI KAUANUI

337 Afterword
DAVID E. WILKINS

345 Appendix: Useful Resources for Further Study

349 Contributors

353 Index