

Contents

Preface	vii
Part I Hegelian Roots	1
1 From Desire to Recognition: Hegel's Grounding of Self-Consciousness	3
2 The Realm of Actualized Freedom: Hegel's Notion of a 'Philosophy of Right'	19
Part II Systematic Consequences	33
3 The Fabric of Justice: On the Limits of Contemporary Proceduralism	35
4 Labour and Recognition: A Redefinition	56
5 Recognition as Ideology: The Connection between Morality and Power	75
6 Dissolutions of the Social: The Social Theory of Luc Boltanski and Laurent Thévenot	98
7 Philosophy as Social Research: David Miller's Theory of Justice	119
Part III Social and Theoretical Applications	135
8 Recognition between States: On the Moral Substrate of International Relations	137
9 Organized Self-Realization: Paradoxes of Individualization	153

10	Paradoxes of Capitalist Modernization: A Research Programme (with Martin Hartmann)	169
Part IV Psychoanalytical Ramifications		191
11	The Work of Negativity: A Recognition-Theoretical Revision of Psychoanalysis	193
12	The I in We: Recognition as a Driving Force of Group Formation	201
13	Facets of the Presocial Self: Rejoinder to Joel Whitebook	217
14	Disempowering Reality: Secular Forms of Consolation	232
	Index	239