

Contents

Acknowledgements	x
Bibliographical Note	xi
Chapter I: Introduction	1
1. The Aims of the Book	1
2. Mental Dualism	6
3. The Central Role of the Meditations	7
Chapter II: Who is Descartes' Meditator?	12
1. The Meditator as Beginner	13
2. The Beginner and the Natural Inclination to Empiricism	14
3. The Maxim of Concept Empiricism: Nihil est in intellectu	16
4. 'This Piece of Wax'	20
5. The Unstated Strategy	22
6. The Meditations and a Process of Conversion	23
Chapter III: Empiricism and Natural Philosophy	27
1. Empiricism and the Neo-Epicureans	28
2. Aristotelianism and Epicureanism: A Single Obstacle to Natural Philosophy	29
3. Descartes and Heliocentrism	31
4. The New Physics and the Supremacy of the Intellect	36
5. The Rejection of Atoms and the Void	38
Chapter IV: The Method of Doubt	43
1. Leading the Mind Away from the Senses	43
2. Notions of the Pure Intellect	44
3. The Withdrawal of Assent from the Images of Sense	49

4. The Argument from Origin	50
5. The Exercise of the Intellect and Will	51
6. Dreaming and Lucid Dreaming	54
7. Doubt as Reflection of a Higher-Order	57
8. Is Cartesian Doubt Really Universal?	60
Chapter V: Res Cogitans	65
1. The Intellectual Nature	65
2. Doubting as the Paradigm of Thought	67
3. Sense and Imagination	68
4. The Outward and Inward Turns	72
5. Intellect as Faculty and Substance	75
Chapter VI: The Active Self	77
1. Self-Knowledge and Empiricism	77
2. From Cogito to Res Cogitans	78
3. The Self Perceived by Pure Intellect	81
4. Innate Ideas	83
5. Res Cogitans as 'Pure Activity'	87
6. Res Cogitans and the 'First Person'	89
Chapter VII: Sense, Sensation and Animal Minds	94
1. Sense	94
2. The Account of Vision	96
3. The Question of Sense Data	97
4. 'This Piece of Wax' Again	100
5. The Internal Senses	101
6. The Three Quasi-Grades of Sense	104
7. The Intermingling Thesis	105
8. Animal Sensation	110
9. Bête Machine as a Wider Problem	115
Chapter VIII: Conscientia and Consciousness	118
1. Thought as a Simple Notion	118

2. Descartes' Definition of Thought	120
3. The Phenomenalist and Intellectualist Readings	122
4. The Shortcomings of the Phenomenalist Reading	124
5. The Method of Doubt and Consciousness	127
6. Conscientia and Consciousness	129
Notes	132
Bibliography	153
Index	158