

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
1 That Experience Does Not Motivate a Robust Claim for Collective Consciousness	21
2 A Metaphysical Critique of the Notion of Collective Consciousness	49
3 Plural Subjects: Phenomenology and Collective Intentionality	77
4 Responding to Criticisms: Phenomenological Evidence and Horizon Intentionality	109
5 The Phenomenology of the Social World and Gilbert's Plural Subject Theory	133
6 Responses to Two Criticisms Motivated by Realist Concerns	169
7 Responding to Sokolowski's Criticisms of Husserlian Individualism	189
Bibliography	215
Index	231
About the Author	235