

Contents

Preface (1997)	xi
Preface (1989)	xxi

PART I The Singularity of Philosophical Thought

1 Philosophy and Its History	3
2 The Character of Philosophical Problems	6
3 Two Sorts of Illusions	14
4 Philosophical Kinds	17
5 Philosophy as Pathology	20
6 Wittgenstein and Plato	24
7 Inside and Outside the World	29
8 The Intelligibility of the World	35
9 The Structures of Philosophical Thought	39

PART II Understanding

10 Vehicles of Understanding	45
11 Verification	54
12 Feeling and Meaning	60
13 Metaethical Controversy	67
14 Two Views of Language	76
15 The Empiricist Theory of Understanding	86
16 Definition and Dialectic	95

17 Analytic, Synthetic, A priori, A posteriori	104
18 Totalistic Thought	111
19 Geometry and Reality	119

PART III Knowledge

20 The Analysis of Knowledge	129
21 Doubt, Dream, and Demon	137
22 Thinking and Certainty	144
23 Internalism and Externalism	151
24 The Ontological Argument	155
25 The Notion of Existence	162
26 Representationalism and Idealism	167
27 Idealism, Realism, and Phenomenalism	176
28 Matter, the World, and Philosophies of Knowledge	186
29 Coherence and Reality	194
30 Reality and Rationality	200

PART IV The World

31 Substance	209
32 The Mind–Body Problem	214
33 Persons	219
34 Behaviorism and Functionalism	228
35 Neurophilosophy	237
36 Intentionality and Representational Materialism	242
37 Representational Beings	249
38 Causal Analysis	257
39 Mental Causation	265
40 The Realm of Spirit	270
Index	275