

Contents

	Preface	x
I	The Philosophical Problems of the Tractatus	1
	A Positive Conception of the Tractatus	14
	Problems and Methods	22
II	Schopenhauer's System of the World	29
	Transcendental Idealism and the Problem of Knowledge	31
	The Four Forms of the Principle of Sufficient Reason	37
	The World as Will and Representation	42
	Space and Time	44
	The Platonic Idea and the Theory of Art	48
	Morality and the Intelligible Subject	52
	Denial of the Will-to-Live	58
III	Realism and Psychologism in Nineteenth-Century Logic	65
	The Historical and Philosophical Grounds of Psychologism	67
	Psychologism in Logic and Mathematics	74
	Frege's Critique of Psychologism	82
	Logical Realism and the Nature of Logic	93
	The Early Realism of Russell and Moore	100
IV	Analysis and Denoting	107
	Existence, Nonexistence, and Being	107
	The Theory of Descriptions and Incomplete Symbols	112
	One Consequence of the Theory of Incomplete Symbols	121

	Analysis, Extensionality, and Logical Constants	125
	Elementary Propositions and Extensionality	132
	Elementary Propositions, Facts, and Objects	135
	Language and the World	143
V	The Picture Theory of Propositions	146
	Some Features of Ordinary Language	146
	Pictures	149
	Logical Pictures	152
	Digression: Frege and Wittgenstein on Determinacy of Sense	157
	Propositions as Logical Pictures	160
	The Tractarian Doctrine of Names	163
	Ordinary Language as Essentially Pictorial	174
VI	Showing and Saying	178
	Russell's Theory of Logical Types and Levels of Language	179
	Showing, Saying, and the Picture Theory of Propositions	184
	Necessity, Tautology, and Logical Propositions	192
	Logic and the Nature of Philosophy	204
VII	The Principles of Mechanics	215
	Mach and Sensationalism	217
	Hertz and the Principles of Mechanics	224
	The Principles of Mechanics	228
	Wittgenstein's Philosophy of Science	229
VIII	Propositional Attitudes and the Empirical Ego	251
	The Multiple Relation Theory of Judgment	253
	Neutral Monism and the Behavioristic Analysis	263
	A Wittgensteinian Critique of Russell's Theories of Judgment	268
	Criticism of the MRTJ	269
	A Critique of the Behavioristic Analysis	271
	Wittgenstein's Theory of Propositional Attitudes	274

IX	Realism, Idealism, and What Solipsism Intends	279
	Solipsism	280
	What Solipsism Intends: The Metaphysical Subject	290
X	The Will, Ethics, and "Das Mystische"	296
	The Will and Ethics	297
	The Will and the World	300
	Value and Scepticism	305
	Action and Reward	310
	God, the World, and the Self	319
	Abbreviations	333
	Index	336