Contents

List of Abbreviations xiii

1. Introduction 1
   - 1.1 The Puzzle of the Tractatus and its Four 'Keys' 2
   - 1.2 Part 1 of a Sketch of the Present Book 3
   - 1.3 Intelligibility as Con-formity 4
   - 1.4 Part 2 of a Sketch of the Present Book 6

2. Some Historical Preliminaries 14
   - 2.1 Logic as Truth and Logic as Language 14
   - 2.2 Frege's Revolutionary Logic 16
   - 2.3 The Logicist Project 18
   - 2.4 Philosophical Problems and Logical Analysis 20
   - 2.5 Frege's Definition of Number 22
   - 2.6 Russell's Paradox and Theories of Types 24
   - 2.7 The Nature of Logic 26

3. Objects, Names, Facts, and Propositions 29
   - 3.1 Objects and Facts 29
   - 3.2 Names and Propositions 33
   - 3.3 The Internal Relation of Depicting 34
   - 3.4 An Inexpressible Con-formism? 35
   - 3.5 Wittgenstein on Signs, Symbols, and Intelligibility as Con-formity 38

4. The Method of the *Tractatus 43
   - 4.1 Resolution: An Initial Sketch 43
   - 4.2 Resolution: A Sharper Specification 46
   - 4.3 Elucidating Nonsense 49
   - 4.4 Broadening our 'Diet of Examples' 51
   - 4.5 Understanding Nonsense and its Logic 53
   - 4.6 An Interlude: 'Understanding' and Understanding, 'Logic' and Logic 54
   - 4.7 Sign/Symbol Conflation and Philosophical Confusion 55
   - 4.8 The Tractatus as Elucidating Nonsense 57
   - 4.9 The Questionable Status of Assertions about Internal Relations 58

4.10 The Assertion of the Holding of Internal Relations as a Move within Confusions 62

5. The Picture Analogy 65

5.1 Pictures and their Parts 66
5.2 'The Illogical' 68
5.3 'The Logical' 71
5.4 'Throwing Away the Ladder' 73

6. Logical and Ontological Types 76

6.1 Ambitions for Notation 76
6.2 Ontological Distinctions 79
6.3 Utter Differences and 'An Infallible Paradigm of Identity' 82
6.4 Shown Differences and Internal Relations 83
6.5 Borrowing Sense and the Fragestellung of Philosophical Problems 87

7. The Supposed 'Con-formity' of Language and World 90

7.1 On Finding a Fit 91
7.2 'The Method of Comparison Must be Given Me before I can Make the Comparison' 95
7.3 Internal Relations Emerge in Contexts of Misunderstanding 98

8. Subjectivity 102

8.1 Thoughts and their Constituents 102
8.2 Does Thought Bind Language to the World? 104
8.3 Learning a First Language 106
8.4 Is Solipsism a Solution to the Puzzle? 110
8.5 An Unsurveyable Condition of Thought? 111
8.6 Solipsism, Internal Relations, and the Sign/Symbol Hybrid 114

9. Objects Revisited 119

9.1 Limits on Doubting the Fulfilment of 'Conditions of Meaning' 120
9.2 Learning a First Language and Learning of the World and its Order 121
9.3 The Demand for Explanation and a Shadow Cast by Language 123
9.4 A Bland 'Belief in Objects' 124
9.5 Descriptions Misconstrued as Prescriptions 127

10. Method Revisited 129

10.1 Elucidation and 'The Only Strictly Correct Method in Philosophy' 129
10.2 Descent into Primeval Chaos 131
10.3 Therapy, Argument, and the Double Life of Elucidations 134
10.4 What is 'the Ladder' Made of? 137

11. The General Form of the Proposition 140

11.1 Introduction 140
11.2 The Double Significance of Elementary Propositions 142
11.3 Logical Laws, Internal Relations, and Inference as 'Unpacking' 144
11.4 Truth-Functions and Truth-Tables 146
11.5 Tautologies and Contradictions 148
11.6 Negation and the Picture Analogy 150
11.7 Islands of Sense 152
11.8 Rules of Inference, Univocal and 'Heterodox' 155
11.9 Does the GFP Embody a Metaphysical Moral? 158

12. Problem Cases for the General Form 162

12.1 The Colour-Exclusion Problem 162
12.2 Generality 163
12.3 Where do our Models 'End'? 166
12.4 How Variables 'Show' 169
12.5 Hypotheses 172

13. Ethics and 'the Inexpressible' 175

13.1 Decency and Philosophy 178
13.2 Logic and Ethics: An Initial Parallel 179
13.3 An Intuition that the Ethical is 'Inexpressible' 181
13.4 Can we use Conscience as a Key to Wittgenstein's Ethical Concerns? 182
13.5 Logic and Ethics: 'Conscience' and 'Judgement' 185
13.6 Ethics and 'the Ladder' 186

14. Ethics and 'the Ladder' 188

14.1 A Sketch of an Initial Case for 'Throwing Away' 'the Inexpressible' 189
14.2 Another Kantian Parallel: A Craving for Reasons and the Rejection of Responsibility 191

14.3 Dissolving our 'Problems of Application' 194
14.4 'The Internal Relation between Belief and its Application' 197
14.5 Conscience as a Supplement to a Sign/Symbol Confusion 198
14.6 Con-formism and 'the Independent Life of Sentences' 199
14.7 The 'Revelation' of 'the Inexpressible' as a Move within a Confusion 202
14.8 'Throwing Away' 'the Inexpressible' and 'the Unteachable' 203
14.9 Enchanted Words and 'Living Words' 206
14.10 Recognition of Conscience is a Metaphilosophical Insight 208
14.11 Further Implications, and a Narrow Conception of Ethics 210

15. Conclusion 213

15.1 Saying and Showing 213
15.2 Showing in Action 214
15.3 Signs, Symbols, Saying, and Showing 221
15.4 The Mystical, a Mundane Ineffable, and a Higher-Order Conscience 223
15.5 The Animism of Logical Truth 227
15.6 Life as a Whole 229
15.7 A Fear of Life 234

Appendix A The Later Wittgenstein 235

A.1 So Why is There a Later Wittgenstein? 235
A.2 Irredeemable Promissory Notes 235
A.3 Family Resemblance 237
A.4 'Language' as a Family Resemblance Concept 238
A.5 Abandoning the Idea of a Proposition's 'Complete Analysis' 240
A.6 The Fate of the Idea of 'the Arbitrariness of Grammar' 242
A.7 'Philosophy' as a Family Resemblance Concept 247
A.8 Metaphilosophical Breadth and Illusions of Unknown Depths 248
A.9 Demonstrating a Method 250
A.10 So Why is the Tractatus Still Worth Reading? 254

Appendix B List of Abbreviations used for Particular 'Theses' of the Tractatus 257

References 258
Index 265