

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
1. Introduction	1
2. Founders of Discourse	5
Introduction	5
Founders: Discursive and Institutional; Deliberative and Appropriated Founders	5
Foucault's Founders	12
Wolin and "Epic Theory"	25
Constitutions, Discourses, Founders	31
Conclusion	39
3. Founders of Institutions	41
Introduction	41
The Social Context of Innovation	41
Creativity, Reputation and Intellectual Networks	43
The Shadow Group Revisited	55
Institutional and Deliberative Founding: Durkheim and the Année sociologique	57
The Founder Idea: A Conjectural Genealogy	66
Conclusion	74

4.	The Utility, Rhetoric and Interpretation of Classic Texts
	Introduction	79
	A Definition of Classic Texts	81
	Classics in Common? The Uses of Classical Theory and The Discipline of Sociology	83
	Rhetoric in the Classical Tradition	89
	Understanding Classic Texts	96
	Presentism	96
	The Historicist Critique and Alternative	98
	Objections to Historicism	102
	Conclusion	108
5.	Classicality: Criteria and Reception	111
	Introduction	111
	The Stratification of Classic Texts	111
	“Criteria” of Classicality?	116
	Classics and Their “Reception”	120
	Classic Reception, Classic Formation	123
	The Classics, Gender and Sexuality	136
	Excursus on Classic Appraisal in Sociology and The Arts	142
	Conclusion	146
6.	Canons	151
	Introduction	151
	“Canon” in Current Social Theory: Usages and Appraisals	152
	Conflicting Terminologies	159
	The Christian Canon and the Classics of Sociology	163

Significance of the Canon Debate: The Controversy Over Higher Education and the Purpose of the University	169
The University and the Jargon of “Relevance”	173
Conclusion	179
7. A Concluding Look at the Three Concepts	183
Appendix on Translation and Reception: The “Iron Cage” and the “Shell of Steel.” Parsons, Weber and the stahlhartes Gehäuse metaphor in The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism.	185
Bibliography	205
Index	235