Preface	ix
Part I From Dualism to Common-sense Functionalism	1
1 The Flight from Dualism	3
The issue between dualism and materialism	3
Two kinds of dualism	4
The causal problem for dualism	6
Some responses for the dualist	9
Refining the definition of materialism	13
Supervenience	14
Supervenience and completeness	15
Possible worlds: an introduction	17
Explications in terms of possible worlds	18
*Supervenience and possible worlds	22
*Materialism and supervenience	23
*Making true and the varieties of materialism	25
*Two warnings	26
Annotated Reading	27
2 Behaviourism and Beyond	29
The case for behaviourism	30
Methodological and revisionary behaviourism	32
Problems for behaviourism	33
The path to functionalism via a causal theory	38
The causal theory of mind	39
Annotated Reading	40

3	Common-sense Functionalism	41
	Multiple realizability	42
	Common-sense functionalism expounded	45
	Interconnections without circularity	49
	*Explicit definitions and Ramsey sentences	51
	Behaviour characterized in terms of environmental impact	52
	What does common sense say about the mind?	54
	Annotated Reading	58
	Part II Rivals and Objections	59
4	Theory of Reference	61
	The description theory of reference	62
	Objections to the description theory	64
	The causal theory	66
	Rigid designation	70
	The necessary a posteriori	74
	Annotated Reading	78
5	Empirical Functionalisms	79
	Common-sense functional roles as a reference-fixing device	79
	Chauvinism and empirical functionalism	82
	Annotated Reading	90
6	The Identity Theory	91
	The identity theory and functionalism	93
	Some early objections to the identity theory	94
	Token-token versus type-type identity theories	96
	* Essentialism about psychological states	101
	Annotated Reading	103
7	Three Challenges to Functionalism	104
	The China brain	104
	The Chinese room	107
	Blockhead	111
	Good chess versus being good at chess	112
	The game of life	114

Why Blockhead is not a thinker	117
Common-sense functionalism and Blockhead	120
Annotated Reading	121

8 Phenomenal Qualities and Consciousness 122

The question of qualia	123
The spectrum inversion objection to functionalism	124
The knowledge argument challenge to physicalism	127
Replies to the knowledge argument	129
Consciousness	135
Annotated Reading	142

9 Instrumentalism and Interpretationism 144

Instrumentalism	144
Stances and intentional systems	145
Instrumentalism and intentional systems theory	149
Interpretationism	154
Annotated Reading	157

Part III About Content 159

10 The Language of Thought 161

The language of thought hypothesis	163
Why are we supposed to believe in the language of thought?	166
The map alternative	168
The way maps represent	170
Do maps explain the phenomena?	171
Annotated Reading	174

11 Content 176

What is the problem of content?	176
The map theory	179
Belief as a map by which we steer	179
The internal sentence theory	185
Discussion of the map-system theory	187
Problems and questions for the internal sentence theory	195
Informational semantics	195
Content, evolution and biological function	202

	A general objection to the internal sentence theory of the content of belief	208
	Annotated Reading	210
12	Broad and Narrow Content	211
	Narrow content	212
	Virtual reality and brains in vats	212
	Narrow content is not intrinsic	214
	Egocentric content	216
	The explanatory value of narrow content	219
	Broad content	220
	The explanatory value of broad content	224
	Deflationism about broad content versus scepticism about narrow content	227
	Annotated Reading	235
	Part IV Explaining Behaviour: Eliminativism and Realism	237
13	Eliminative Materialism	239
	The case for eliminativism	239
	The functionalist reply to eliminativism	242
	Does functionalism make it too easy to save folk psychology?	247
	Empirical functionalism: how to have strong internal constraints without inviting scepticism	248
	Natural kinds and scientific reductions	249
	Annotated Reading	254
14	Psychological Explanation and Common-sense Functionalism	255
	Three questions for common-sense functionalism	256
	The triviality question	257
	The relationship question: partial and complete explanations	259
	The causal question	264
	Annotated Reading	266
	Glossary	267
	Bibliography	282
	Index	287
