

---

Contents

Acknowledgments	v
Preface	vii
Contributors	xiii
1 Evolution, Cognition, and Morality: What Do Epistemology and Moral Philosophy Mean After Darwin? Franz M. Wuketits	1
2 Darwinian Tensions Anthony O'Hear	17
3 Evolution, Cognition and Value: the Ingredients for a Naturalist Philosophy Konrad Talmont-Kaminski	29
4 Reply to Konrad Talmont-Kaminski Anthony O'Hear	49
5 Fodor vs. Darwin: A Methodological Follow-Up Lilia Gurova	55
6 Darwin's Inference of Origins Aviezer Tucker	65
7 The Scientific Status of Darwinism Vladimir Havlik	85
8 Revisiting Popper's Evolutionary Theory of Knowledge Vikram Singh Sirola	99

9 Criticism and Dogmatism in Popper's Evolutionary Epistemology Zuzana Parusniková	109
10 Reciprocal Containment, Naturalized Epistemology and Metaphysical Realism Jonathan Knowles	125
11 Evolutionary Ruminations on "the Value of Knowledge Intuition" Christos Kyriacou	141
12 Teleology as a Theory of Meaning Juraj Hvorecký	157
13 Adaptationism, Deflationism, and Anti-Individualism Tomáš Hříbek	167
14 Creatures of Norms as Uncanny Niche Constructors Jaroslav Peregrin	189
15 Searle and Kim on Emergentism Ranjan K. Panda	199
16 Genealogy, Evolution, and Morality Christoph Schuringa	215
17 Evolution and Moral Scepticism Makoto Suzuki	227
18 Evolutionary Origins of the Sense of Justice Wojciech Zahuski	257
19 Evolution, Religion, and the Human Mind Slawomir Sztajer	273