

CONTENTS

Preface	viii
PART I ASSEMBLING INTENTIONALITY	1
1 Evolutionary Naturalism	3
1.1 Two Projects of Evolutionary Naturalism	3
1.2 The Simple Coordination Thesis	5
2 Detection Systems	11
2.1 The Environmental Complexity Hypothesis	11
2.2 Detection Systems	14
2.3 The Power of Detection Systems	17
2.4 Transparent and Translucent Worlds	20
2.5 Robust Tracking Systems	27
3 Fuels for Success	30
3.1 Decoupled Representation	30
3.2 Response Breadth	33
3.3 Fuels for Success: Space	40
3.4 Fuels for Success: Intervention in the Material World	45
3.5 Reprise	50
4 Fuels for Success: The Social Intelligence Hypothesis	51
4.1 The Cognitive Demands of Social Life	51
4.2 The Social Intelligence Hypothesis	55
4.3 The Cognitive World of the Great Apes: Imitation	58

CONTENTS

4.4	The Cognitive World of Great Apes: Tracking Other Minds	67
5	The Descent of Preference	78
5.1	Internal Environments	78
5.2	The Forager's Dilemma	81
5.3	Preference Eliminativism?	87
5.4	Preference-like States	92
PART II NOT JUST ANOTHER SPECIES OF LARGE MAMMAL		97
6	Reconstructing Hominid Evolution	99
6.1	Testing Theories of Human Evolution	99
6.2	From Cognitive Device to Evolutionary History	101
6.3	Making Progress	105
6.4	An Example: Tomasello's Conjecture	116
6.5	Conclusions	121
7	The Cooperation Explosion	123
7.1	The Cooperative Primate	123
7.2	Group Selection and Human Cooperation	125
7.3	The Ecological Trigger of Hominid Cooperation	128
7.4	Coalition and Enforcement	131
7.5	Commitment to Enforcement	138
7.6	Upshot	142
8	The Self-made Species	146
8.1	Ecological Engineers	146
8.2	Cumulative Niche Construction: The Cognitive Condition	149
8.3	Cumulative Niche Construction: The Social Condition	152
8.4	Hominid Epistemic Engineering	154
8.5	Downstream Epistemic Engineering	157
9	Heterogeneous Environments and Variable Response	162
9.1	Phenotypic Plasticity	162
9.2	Is Plasticity an Adaptation?	166
9.3	Reprise	171

CONTENTS

PART III THE FATE OF THE FOLK	175
10 The Massive Modularity Hypothesis	177
10.1 Massive Modularity	177
10.2 Language: Paradigm or Outlier?	178
10.3 Communicative Intentions	181
10.4 Fodor's Modules and their Limits	185
10.5 Inward Bound	189
10.6 Evolution and Encapsulation	192
10.7 The Poverty of the Stimulus	195
10.8 The Case of Folk Biology	200
10.9 Modularity and the Frame Problem	205
11 Interpreting Other Agents	211
11.1 A Theory of Mind Module?	211
11.2 Deconstructing the Folk Psychology Module	212
11.3 Interpretation, Perception, and Scaffolded Learning	221
11.4 Truth, Evidence, and Success	225
11.5 Coordination and Meaning	230
11.6 Something New under the Sun?	234
References	241
Index	258