1 Introduction	1
PART 1
The art of food?	3
Can we think of cooking as an art form and the dishes it produces as works of art? What in the end makes a practice an art form and an object a work of art?
2 Food as art	9
ELIZABETH TELFER
3 The meaning of taste and the taste of meaning	28
CAROLYN KORSMEYER
PART 2
The “authentic” performance of music	51
What is it to give an “authentic” performance of a piece of music? Should a performance be faithful to the composer’s artistic intentions? Would an “authentic” performance have any aesthetic advantages?
4 Authenticity in musical performance	57
STEPHEN DAVIES
5 The concept of authentic performance	69
JAMES O. YOUNG

PART 3
Fakes and forgeries		81
	Would we be justified in revising our aesthetic judgment of a work after learning that it is a fake? In what ways does (or should) our knowledge that an artwork is an original bear upon our aesthetic valuation of it?
6	What is wrong with a forgery?	87
	ALFRED LESSING
7	Artistic crimes	100
	DENIS DUTTON
PART 4
Rock music and culture		113
	What role does music play in a culture? What does the widespread preference for rock music over classical music say about contemporary Western culture?
8	The decline of musical culture	119
	ROGER SCRUTON
9	Music's worldly uses, or how I learned to stop worrying and to love Led Zeppelin	135
	THEODORE GRACYK
PART 5
Appreciation, understanding, and nature		149
	Are there correct and incorrect ways of appreciating nature and appreciating works of art? How does our aesthetic appreciation of nature differ from our aesthetic appreciation of works of art?
10	Appreciation and the natural environment	155
	ALLEN CARLSON
11	On being moved by nature: between religion and natural history	167
	NOËL CARROLL

PART 6
Photography and representation		189
	Are we interested in photographs for their own sake, or are we interested in photographs only for the sake of what they are photographs of? Is photography a representational art form? How does aesthetic appreciation of photographs differ from aesthetic appreciation of paintings?
12	Photography and representation	195
	ROGER SCRUTON
13	Scruton and reasons for looking at photographs	215
	WILLIAM L. KING
14	Individual style in photographic art	223
	NIGEL WARBURTON
PART 7
Feelings and fictions		233
	Fictional characters aren't real. So why should we care about what happens to them? Is it rational to be moved by what we know is not real? What sorts of state are we moved to when we are moved by fiction?
15	How can we be moved by the fate of Anna Karenina?	239
	COLIN RADFORD
16	Fiction and the emotions	250
	ALEX NEILL
PART 8
Enjoying horror		269
	Why is it that we take such enjoyment in horror movies and novels? Why would one seek out works which are apparently designed to make us experience feelings and emotions such as fear and revulsion?
17	Why horror?	275
	NOËL CARROLL

18 The paradox of horror	295
BERYS GAUT
PART 9
Sentimentality	309
What makes an artwork, or a response to an artwork, sentimental? Is sentimental art always bad art? What makes sentimentality objectionable, when it is? Is sentimentality ever appropriate in a work or a response?
19 Sentimentality	315
ANTHONY SAVILE
20 The alleged unwholesomeness of sentimentality	320
IRA NEWMAN
PART 10
Art and morality	333
Could there be a great work of art that was morally bad? What would make a work of art morally bad? What is the relationship, if any, between aesthetic and moral values?
21 Morals in fiction and fictional morality	339
KENDALL L. WALTON
22 Morals in fiction and fictional morality – a response	358
MICHAEL TANNER
PART 11
Feminism and aesthetics	375
Are there distinctively feminist ways of thinking philosophically about art? If there are, what challenges do they pose to traditional aesthetics? How might aesthetics evolve in response to the insights of feminist theory?
23 Oppressive texts, resisting readers and the gendered spectator: the “new” aesthetics	381
MARY DEVEREAUX
24 Art, oppression, and the autonomy of aesthetics	399
