

Contents

- Foreword to the English Edition by Tom Rockmore vii
- Preface xxiii
- Acknowledgments xxvii
- Introduction i
1. Before 1933: Heidegger's Radicalism, the Destruction of the Philosophical Tradition, and the Call to Nazism 8
 2. Heidegger, the "Bringing into Line," and the New Student Law 39
 3. Work Camps, the Health of the People, and the Hard Race in the Lectures and Speeches of 1933–1934 59
 4. The Courses of 1933–1935: From the Question of Man to the Affirmation of the People and the German Race 87
 5. Heidegger's Hitlerism in the Seminar On the Essence and Concepts of Nature, History, and State 113
 6. Heidegger, Carl Schmitt, and Alfred Baeumler: The Struggle Against the Enemy and His Extermination 151

7. Law and Race: Erik Wolf Between Heidegger, Schmitt, and Rosenberg 173
 8. Heidegger and the Longevity of the Nazi State in the Unpublished Seminar on Hegel and the State 203
 9. From the Justification of Racial Selection to the Ontological Negationism of the Bremen Lectures 243
- Conclusion 316
- Appendix A: The Political Trustworthiness of the Parteigenosse Heidegger According to the Secret Reports of the SD 325
- Appendix B: Excerpt from Heidegger's Rectorship Address, Published Alongside the Anti-Semitic Theses of the Deutsche Studentenschaft in 1938 by Ernst Forsthoff 331
- Notes 335
- Bibliography 411
- Index 431