

Contents

I. THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE NEWTONIAN SYNTHESIS	page 3
Lecture, University of Chicago, November 3, 1948; published in Archives Internationales d'Histoire des Sciences 3 (1950), 291-311; reprinted in Journal of General Education 4 (1950), 256-268
II. CONCEPT AND EXPERIENCE IN NEWTON'S SCIENTIFIC THOUGHT	25
Originally published as "L'Hypothèse et l'expérience chez Newton," Bulletin de la Société Française de Philosophie 50 (1956), 59-79.
III. NEWTON AND DESCARTES	53
Study based on a Horblit Lecture on the History of Science, Harvard University, March 8, 1961.
APPENDICES
A Huygens and Leibniz on Universal Attraction	115
B Attraction an Occult Quality?	139
C Gravity an Essential Property of Matter?	149
D The Void and Extension	164
E Rohault and Clarke on Attraction	170
F Copernicus and Kepler on Gravity	173
G Gassendi on Attraction and Gravity	176
H Hooke on Gravitational Attraction	180
I Gassendi and Horizontal Motion	185
J The State of Motion and the State of Rest	188
K Descartes on the Infinite and the Indefinite	192
L God and the Infinite	195
M Motion, Space, and Place	198

CONTENTS

IV. NEWTON, GALILEO, AND PLATO	20
Read at the IXth International Congress of History of Science in Madrid, 1959; first published in Actes du IX^e Congrès International d'Histoire des Sciences (1960), 165-197; reprinted in Annales 6 (1960), 1041-1059.
V. AN UNPUBLISHED LETTER OF ROBERT HOOKE TO ISAAC NEWTON	22
Published in Isis 43 (1952), 312-337.
VI. NEWTON'S "REGULAE PHILOSOPHANDI"	261
Published in Archives Internationales d'Histoire des Sciences 13 (1960), 3-14.
VII. ATTRACTION, NEWTON, AND COTES	273
Published in Archives Internationales d'Histoire des Sciences 14 (1961), 225-236.
Index	283