

CONTENTS

xi Preface

xiii PAUL TILLICH: "A Pervasive Sense of Joy"

1 FIRST DIALOGUE

Tillich's Theology

Two Concepts of Religion

What Is "Ultimate Concern"?

Destiny or Free Will

19 SECOND DIALOGUE

Idolatry and Demonization Distinguished from Ultimate Concern

Socialism, Communism, Nationalism, Fascism

The Origin of Quasi-Religions

Are the Secular Religions Empty?

Are the Quasi-Religions Necessary?

Religion and Art

Reform or Retreat

42 THIRD DIALOGUE

The Term "God"

Being and Existence
Love and Self-Love
Finite and Infinite
Power and Vocation
Rigidity and Fragility
Symbol and Reality

70 FOURTH DIALOGUE

Can Socialism Replace Christianity?
Self-Criticism in Christianity and Communism
The American Way of Life
Can Religion Be Restored When Replaced by Socialism?
The Restoration of Religious Symbols
Are the Churches Too Narrow?
Are Christian Symbols Necessary?

100 FIFTH DIALOGUE

Is a Judeo-Christian Dialogue Possible?
Is Judaism a More Tolerant Faith?
Universalism in Christianity and Judaism
Grace, Reconciliation, and Forgiveness
Progress in Christianity, Judaism, and Islam

125 SIXTH DIALOGUE

The Kairos in Christianity and Hinduism
The Kairos and the Cross
Sainthood and Experience of the Kairos
Buddha and Christ as Historical Figures
Was Jesus Christ Unique?
Can Christ Be Distinguished from the Saints?

Christ as a Symbol
Which Religious Symbols Are Now Dead?
The Kairos and the Individual
Jesus—the Image and the Reality

157 SEVENTH DIALOGUE

What Is a Miracle?
What Is Providence?
Can a Secular Society Survive?
Must Ultimate Concern Be Self-Conscious?

188 EIGHTH DIALOGUE

Is Paul Tillich a Dangerous Man?
"Apostle to the Intellectual"
Monasticism and the Priesthood
Marriage and Divorce
Layman and Monk
Pride and Self-Affirmation
Saint and Sinner
More on the Uniqueness of Christ
Christianity and Western Civilization

221 *Bibliography*227 Index