

Contents

PART ONE

I. What Threats are Made	3
1. What is deterrence?	3
2. France's threat	4
3. Britain's threat	6
4. The complex US threat	11
5. The inflexible underpinning of flexible response	13
6. 'We do not target population as such'	18
7. A 'particularly helpful' letter	23
8. A short lexicon of deterrent threats	27
Notes	29
Appendix: British bombing policies, 1939-45	38
II. What Backs up the Threats	45
1. The weapons	45
2. Control	48
3. Plans	50
4. Readiness	53
Notes	59

PART TWO

III. The Duty to Deter	65
1. Introduction	65
2. The goals of the deterrent	66
3. The duty to defend Western political society	68
4. The Soviets unopposed	70
5. The deterrent: necessity and permissibility	74
Notes	76

iv. Judging the Deterrent by Common Morality	77
1. Common morality and intent to kill innocents?	77
2. The significance of intent	78
3. Conditional intentions	81
4. Who are innocents?	86
5. Deterrence and intentional killing of innocents	91
6. How deterrent purposes define intent	94
7. A different judgement on the deterrent?	96
Notes	98
v. Must the Threat Involve the Intention?	104
1. 'We may change our minds on the day'	104
2. 'Mere possession'	105
3. 'Keeping the option open'	110
4. The deterrent a bluff?	113
5. Who could be bluffing?	118
6. The deterrent as a social act	120
7. Presumptions and implausibilities	123
Notes	124
vi. Must the Deterrent Threaten Innocents?	132
1. A threat limited to combatants	132
2. Do Western deterrents avoid threatening innocents?	136
3. An 'interim' threat to innocents?	143
4. Capabilities needed for pure counterforce	147
A. 'First strike' capability
B. Strategic defence
5. A pure counterforce threat of victory denial?	154
6. Concluding reflections on deterrent intention	159
Notes	161

PART THREE

vii.	Deterrence as the 'Lesser Evil'	177
	1. Justifying deterrence by its consequences	177
	2. Consequentialism and wrongful intentions	180
	3. Non-combatant immunity not absolute?	181
	4. A consequentialist objection and reply	189
	5. Crypto-consequentialist justifications	195
	Notes	201
viii.	The Prospect of the Holocaust: The Consequentialist Case Against the Deterrent	207
	1. Condemning deterrence for its risks	207
	2. The risk of nuclear war	208
	3. Nuclear holocaust	213
	4. The disaster-avoidance principle rejected	219
	5. A principle of expected utility?	221
	6. 'Make the worse significantly less probable . . .'	223
	7. Gambling with unknown odds of catastrophe	228
	Notes	233
ix.	The Futility of Consequentialist Arguments	238
	1. Consequentialism and common morality	238
	2. Consequentialism and deterrence revisited	240
	3. The arguments of VII and VIII reviewed	242
	4. Feelings of commensurability explained	249
	5. Why consequentialist arguments must fail	251
	6. A conclusive argument against consequentialism	254
	7. Why common speech sounds consequentialist	261
	Notes	267

PART FOUR

x.	A Sounder Theory of Morality	275
	1. Beyond 'teleology' and 'deontology'	275
	2. The idea of basic human goods	277
	3. Which are the basic human goods?	278

4.	The first moral principle	281
5.	Specifications of the first moral principle	284
6.	Human action	288
7.	Deriving specific moral norms	291
	Notes	294
XI.	Why Innocents May Not be Intentionally Killed	297
1.	Completing the moral evaluation of the deterrent	297
2.	An unjustifiable means to a good end	298
3.	The deterrent's threat against some basic good(s)	300
4.	Human life: a basic good of human persons	304
5.	Justifiable deadly deeds: the relevance of innocence	309
	Notes	318
PART FIVE
XII.	Disarmament	323
1.	Is mutual disarmament a realistic prospect?	323
2.	Morality's demands do not wait	326
3.	The only possible choice not absolutely excluded	328
4.	How much must be renounced?	331
5.	How quickly?	335
	Notes	337
XIII.	While Deterrence Continues: Individual Responsibilities	342
1.	Different beliefs, different obligations	342
2.	Responsibilities of those who judge deterrence wrong	343
2.1.	Members of Congress or Parliament	344
2.2.	Submarine commanders	347
2.3.	Key-turners	350
2.4.	Citizens at large	351
2.5.	Civil disobedience	354
3.	Responsibilities of those who accept the deterrent	357
4.	An important common responsibility	360
	Notes	361

Contents

xv

PART SIX

xiv. Concluding Christian Thoughts	367
1. Why write this book?	367
2. Realism?	368
3. A profession of faith	371
4. Faith and morals	376
5. Providence, the West, and the Kingdom	378
6. Look, judge, choose	384
Notes	388
 Bibliography of works cited	 391
 Index	 413