
Contents

Preface	vii
Translator's Note	xi
Introduction: The Project of a Critical Hermeneutics	1
I The Preunderstanding of the Interpreter
1 Preunderstanding and Language	19
1.1 Preunderstanding as a Condition of Interpretation: Gadamer's Hermeneutic Holism	19
1.2 The Linguistic-Ontological Turn of Hermeneutics	36
1.3 Is Interpretation an "Event of Play"?	49
2 The Limits of Linguistic Idealism in Hermeneutics	57
2.1 "Being That Can Be Understood Is Language"	59
2.2 The Limits of Understanding	67
3 Preunderstanding, Meaning, and Social Power	83
3.1 The Hermeneutic Conception of Meaning	85
3.2 Episteme and Power Practices: A Conceptual Clarification of the Hermeneutic Background	93
3.3 The Question of Critique	105

II Hermeneutics as Critique

4 Productive Dialogue as a Model of Interpretation	113
4.1 The Dialogic Ethos as Subjective Orientation	114
4.2 Dialogic Truth Interpretation or Distanced Context Explanation: The Methodological Either/Or of Philosophical Hermeneutics	127
4.3 Ethical and Methodological Recognition of the Other	141
5 The Distancing Disclosure of Symbolic Orders	159
5.1 Toward a Methodology of Critical Hermeneutics	161
5.2 Foucault's Attempts to Ground a Perspective "Outside Hermeneutics"	179
5.3 A Hermeneutic Grounding of Discourse Analysis	195
6 A Hermeneutically Sensitive Theory of Power	215
6.1 Understanding and Explanation: The Methodological Question Concerning Power	215
6.2 What Is "Power" or: Toward a Hermeneutic Analysis of Social Power Relations	230
Conclusion: Critical Theory as Critical Hermeneutics	251
1 The Dialogic Constitution of the Truth about Power	256
2 Hermeneutic Reflexivity and Dialogic Subjectivity: The Critical Self	266
List of Abbreviations	277
Notes	279
Index	317