

Contents

- Preface* 9
- 1 Philosophical Logic, the Philosophy of Logic, Philosophy and Logic 13
Philosophical logic and the philosophy of logic. Philosophy and logic. Notes
- 2 The Proposition 24 ^{x₁}
Introduction. Sentences and what they say. The intentionality of consciousness. Propositions as intentions criticised. Propositions as meanings. Sense, reference, and opacity. Propositions as meanings criticised further. Nominalism and realism. Innocuous propositions. Notes
- 3 Necessity, Analyticity, and the A Priori 43 ^{x₂}
Introduction. Classifications of truths. Analyticity. Defending a dogma. 'Analytic' again. The notion of necessity. De dicto and de re. Formalisation and essence. Possible worlds. Objections to possible-worlds discourse. Unactualised possibilities. Existence and actuality: some problems. Essentialism. Quine's paradox of the mathematical cyclist. Essence, origin and structure. Necessity again, analyticity, and the a priori. Concluding remarks. Notes
- 4 Existence, presuppositions and descriptions 96 ^{x₁}
Introduction. Is 'exists' a predicate? Logical predicates and ontological commitment. Existence and presupposed classes. The theory of descriptions. Strawson on descriptions. Referential and attributive uses of descriptions. Notes
- 5 Truth: The Pragmatic and Coherence Theories 125
Introduction. The pragmatic theory of truth. James' defence. The coherence theory of truth. Coherence as dependence. The character of coherence. Positivist coherentism. Criteria for coherence. Difficulties and objections. Notes

6	Truth: The Correspondence, Redundancy and Semantic Theories	143
	The correspondence theory of truth. Correspondence and atomism. Austin and conventions. Correlation and congruity. Meaning and truth. The redundancy theory of truth. Proforms and redundancy. The semantic theory of truth. A formal sketch. Tarski, natural language and neutrality. Is Tarski's theory a correspondence theory? Concluding remarks. Notes
7	Meaning, Reference, Verification and Use	173
	Introduction. The denotative theory of meaning. Reference and the causal theory. The ideational theory of meaning. The behavioural theory of meaning. Quine, behaviour and language. The verification theory of meaning. The use theory of meaning: Wittgenstein and method. Speech-acts. Notes
8	Truth, Meaning, Realism and Antirealism	219
	Introduction. Truth and meaning. Davidson's proposals. Paradox and other problems. Why truth? Truth and a theory of linguistic behaviour. Truth and realism. What is it to know the truth-conditions of a sentence? The antirealist alternative. Antirealism: some objections and defences. The problem of the past. Notes
9	Some Consequences and Commitments	267
	Introduction. The metaphysics of antirealism. Relativism. Antirealism. The eliminability of truth. A concluding commitment. Notes
	Bibliography	295
	Index	301