

Contents

1	Introduction Christopher F. Zurn	1
2	Rousseau and the Human Drive for Recognition (Amour Propre) Frederick Neuhouser	21
3	Recognition and Embodiment: Fichte's Materialism J. M. Bernstein	47
4	"The Pure Notion of Recognition": Reflections on the Grammar of the Relation of Recognition in Hegel's Phenomenology of Spirit Michael Quante	89
5	Recognition in Hegel's Phenomenology of Spirit and Contemporary Practical Philosophy Ludwig Siep	107
6	Recognition, the Right, and the Good Terry Pinkard	129
7	Producing for Others Daniel Brudney	151
8	"Recognition" in Psychoanalysis Andreas Wildt	189
9	Rethinking Recognition Nancy Fraser	211

10	Work and Recognition: A Redefinition Axel Honneth	223
11	Taking on the Inheritance of Critical Theory: Saving Marx by Recognition? Emmanuel Renault	241
12	Can the Goals of the Frankfurt School be Achieved by a Theory of Recognition? Hans-Christoph Schmidt am Busch	257
13	Critique of Political Economy and Contemporary Critical Theory: A Defense of Honneth's Theory of Recognition Jean-Philippe Deranty	285
14	On the Scope of "Recognition": The Role of Adequate Regard and Mutuality Arto Laitinen	319
15	Making the Best of What We Are: Recognition as an Ontological and Ethical Concept Heikki Ikäheimo	343
	Index	369
	About the Contributors	375