

Ens Primum Cognitum in
Thomas Aquinas and the Tradition

The Philosophy of Being as First Known

By

Brian A. Kemple

BRILL
RODOPI

LEIDEN | BOSTON

Contents

Introduction: Escaping the Framework of Modernity	1
1 The Latin Thomists and Ens Primum Cognitum	20
1.1 The Early Dispute: Setting the Stage	21
1.1.1 The Scotistic Foil	22
1.2 Thomas Cajetan and the Doctrine of Being	28
1.2.1 Cajetan's Four Cognitions and Three Abstractions	29
1.2.2 The Doctrine of Analogy	40
1.2.3 Conclusion	50
1.3 John Poinset, the Nature of Concepts and Ens ut Primum Cognitum	51
1.3.1 Objectivity and Conceptualization	54
1.3.2 De Primo Cognito	72
1.3.3 Objectivity and the Concept of Ens Primum Cognitum	87
2 Recent Thomistic Interpretations of Ens Primum Cognitum	89
2.1 Étienne Gilson's "Metaphysical Realism"	89
2.1.1 Overcoming Critique	90
2.1.2 Abstraction and the Nature of the Concept	99
2.1.3 Realism vs. Idealism and the Question of Ens ut Primum Cognitum	106
2.2 Jacques Maritain	110
2.2.1 Maritain on Abstraction	110
2.2.2 Concept Formation	124
2.2.3 Maritain on Ens Primum Cognitum	135
2.3 Conclusion	141
3 The Intellectus Agens and Concept Formation	143
3.1 St. Thomas and the Obiectum Intellectus	146
3.1.1 Ens, Ens ut Verum, and Ens Intelligibile	146
3.1.2 Quod Quid Est, Quid Est, and Quod Quid Erat Esse	158
3.1.3 Quidditas Rei and Quidditas Rei Materialis	163
3.2 Intellectus Agens	170
3.2.1 Illuminare	171
3.2.2 Digression on Nature: Matter, Form, and Understanding	188
3.2.3 Abstrahere	198

4	The Discursion of Concept Formation	216
4.1	The Discursion of Intellectual Discovery	217
4.1.1	From Pre-Philosophical Cognition to Philosophical Science	218
4.1.2	Intellectual Discovery and the Philosophical Sciences	239
4.2	Formation of the Verbum Mentis	248
4.2.1	The Derivation of Primary Concepts	251
4.2.2	Terminus of Intellectual Operation and Intentional Fundamentum	254
4.2.3	Necessity of Composition	258
4.2.4	Definition and Quiddity	262
4.3	A Recursive Analysis of the Species Expressa	264
4.3.1	True and False Concepts	264
4.3.2	Species Expressae and Cognition-Dependent Objects	268
4.3.3	What is Inessential to Things is Essential to Our Concepts	274
5	Relation and Ens Primum Cognitum	277
5.1	What is Relation?	279
5.1.1	Relativa Secundum Esse	282
5.1.2	Relativa Secundum Dici	306
5.1.3	The Constitution of Cognition-Dependent Relative Being	320
5.2	Relations and Objectivity	325
5.2.1	Intellectual Apprehension of Relations	326
5.2.2	Interpretation and the Constitution of Objective Realities	327
5.2.3	"Reality", "The Real", and Objective Constitution	330
6	The Nature of Ens Primum Cognitum	335
6.1	Summary of Argument	335
6.2	The Nature of Ens Primum Cognitum	340
6.2.1	St. Thomas and the Resolutio ad Ens Primum Cognitum	340
6.3	Conclusion	349
	References	353
	Cited	353
	Selected	369
	Index	373