

The Unexplained Intellect

Complexity, time, and the metaphysics of embodied thought

Christopher Mole

 Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group
LONDON AND NEW YORK

Contents

Preface	ix
PART 1
The complexity of intelligence	1
1 The neglect of noology	3
2 The philosophical relevance of theoretical computer science	14
3 The explanatory consequences of imperfection	33
4 Sources of intractability	51
PART 2
Temporal orientation	67
5 The psychological arrow of time	69
6 Temporally chiral attitudes	79
7 Episodic and semantic memory	85
PART 3
A point of local metaphysics	95
8 Metaphysical questions	97

viii	Contents
9	The modal signature of ontological dependence	104
10	Leveraging the mind	110
11	An argument for dynamic foundations	115
PART 4
	The perdurance of intelligent thought	125
12	Epistemic conduct	127
13	Encountering events	133
14	Action as an epistemic encounter	136
15	Inference as an epistemic encounter	144
16	Encountering unrepresented facts	150
17	Encounters first	156
18	The achievement of intelligence	163
	Bibliography	169
	Index	178