

Marx's Inferno

THE POLITICAL THEORY OF CAPITAL

William Clare Roberts

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS

PRINCETON AND OXFORD

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
A Note on References and Translations	xiii
1. Introduction: Rereading Capital	1
Reading Capital as Political Theory	3
Reading Capital as Political Theory	9
Outline of the Argument	17
2. Taenarus: The Road to Hell	20
The Elements of the Case	24
The Social Hell	32
Marx's Katabasis	40
Conclusion	54
3. Styx: The Anarchy of the Market	56
Republican Socialism and the Money Mystery	58
Marx's Innovations	74
Fetishism and Domination	82
Conclusion	101
4. Dis: Capitalist Exploitation as Force Contrary to Nature	104
Exploitation before Capital	108
Capitalist Exploitation in Capital	119
Exploitation as Forza contra Natura	134
Conclusion	142
5. Malebolge: The Capitalist Mode of Production as Fraud	146
Capital with a Human Face	153
The Monsters of Fraud	163
Conclusion	183
6. Cocytus: Treachery and the Necessity of Expropriation	187
Primitive Accumulation as a Problem	193
Negating the Negation	208
Conclusion	222

7. Conclusion: Purgatory, or the Social Republic	228
Marx's Midwifery	231
The Shape of Things to Come	244
Conclusion	256
Bibliography	259
Index	277