

Phenomenal Qualities

Sense, Perception, and Consciousness

EDITED BY

Paul Coates

and Sam Coleman

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

List of Contributors	xi
Introduction: The Nature of Phenomenal Qualities Paul Coates and Sam Coleman	1
Section I. The Ontology of Phenomenal Qualities
1. Quality Spaces and Sensory Modalities David Rosenthal	33
2. Neuro-Cosmology Sam Coleman	66
3. Phenomenal Qualities: What They Must Be, and What They Cannot Be Howard Robinson	103
4. Real Acquaintance and Physicalism Philip Goff	121
Section II. Perception and Phenomenal Qualities
5. Moore's Dilemma M. G. F. Martin	147
6. Projection, Revelation, and the Function of Perception Paul Coates	181
7. Real Direct Realism: Reflections on Perception Galen Strawson	214
Section III. The Kinds and Character of Phenomenal Qualities
8. A New Argument for Realism from Perceptual Content E. J. Lowe	257
9. Can We Really See a Million Colours? David Papineau	274
10. The Nature of Pain and the Appearance/Reality Distinction Michael Tye	298
11. The Life of the Mind Michelle Montague	322

Section IV. Phenomenal Qualities and Empirical Findings

12. A Function-Centered Taxonomy of Visual Attention Ronald A. Rensink	347
13. Can Sounds Be Red? A New Account of Synaesthesia as Enriched Experience Ophelia Deroy	376
14. Technical Issues in Naive Sense-Datum Theory John M. Nicholas	400
Index	423