

DIONYSUS REBORN

Play and the Aesthetic Dimension in Modern Philosophical and Scientific Discourse

MIHAI I. SPARIOSU

Cornell University Press
ITHACA AND LONDON

Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction: Play, Power, and the Western Mentality	1
PART I
PLAY AND MODERN PHILOSOPHICAL DISCOURSE	29
Section 1
Play and the Aesthetic Turn in German Idealism	31
1·1 Immanuel Kant: Philosophy and/or Play? 33
1·2 Friedrich Schiller: The Play of Reason 53
Section 2
Return of the Repressed: Play and Machtphilosophie	65
2·1 Play and Nietzsche's Will to Power 68
2·2 After Nietzsche: Martin Heidegger and the Play of Being 99
Section 3
Play and the Artist-Metaphysicians	124
3·1 Eugen Fink and the Play of the World 125
3·2 Play and Ontological Hermeneutics: Hans-Georg Gadamer 133
3·3 Gilles Deleuze: The Play of Simulacra 143
3·4 Writing and Play: Jacques Derrida 153

PART II

PLAY AND MODERN SCIENTIFIC DISCOURSE	165
Section 1
Play and Human Evolution	166
1·1 Spencer, Groos, and the Play of Man	168
1·2 Play and Psychoanalytic Theory	176
1·3 Piaget, Bateson, and Contemporary Play Theory	190
Section 2
Play and Natural Selection	204
2·1 Play, Struggle for Life, and Survival of the Fittest	206
2·2 Chance and Necessity	215
2·3 René Thom and Biological Play	232
Section 3
Play and the Aesthetic Turn in Contemporary Science	240
3·1 Hans Vaihinger's Philosophy of As If	246
3·2 Play and the New Physicists	258
3·3 Play and Anarchistic Epistemology in the Contemporary Philosophy of Science	292
Index	313