

Contents

Preface	i
Chapter One — Scientific Realism and the Aporia of Contemporary Philosophy	1
1. Rifts in Recent Philosophy	1
2. Forms of Realism	5
3. Metaphysics and Method	10
4. Praxis and Ontology	27
5. Epistemology, Explanation and Scientific Change	50
6. Incommensurability and the Refutation of Superidealism	70
7. First Steps Towards the Metacritique of Irrealism	93
8. Some Implications of Realism	98
Chapter Two — Critical Naturalism and the Dialectic of Human Emancipation	103
1. Scientific Realism and the Emergence of the Social Order	104
2. Critical Naturalism and the Transformational Model of Social Activity	118
3. Socio-Evolutionary Concepts, Functional Explanation and Human History	136

4. Problems of Topology, Conceptuality and Critique	154
5. Facts and Values; Theory and Practice	169
6. Reason and the Dialectic of Human Emancipation	181
7. Depth, Rationality and Change	200
8. A Note on History	211

Chapter Three — The Positivist Illusion:
Sketch of a Philosophical Ideology at Work 224

1. Positivism in Context	225
2. Metacritical Preliminaries: Sociology, Science, Ideology	236
I The Contribution of the Sociology of Knowledge	236
II Ideology in the Marxist Tradition	242
III Science versus Ideology in the Critique of Positivism	247
3. Coordinates of the Positivist Account of Science	252
4. The Grid of Phenomenalism	259
5. Synchronic Transformations of the Grid	271
6. Ideology in the Transitive Dimension: The Concept of a Fact	280
7. Ideology in the Intransitive Dimension: Constant Conjunctions and Social Atoms	285
8. Ideology in the Metacritical Dimension: Presence of an Absence	292
9. Equivocations, Problem-field, Generalisations, Displacements and Results	292