

CONTENTS

CHAPTER	PAGE
I. THE STRUCTURE OF THE TRACTATUS	1
1. The Formulated Principle of the Numbering	3
2. The Main Line of Thought of the Tractatus	5
3. Comments and Preambles	7
4. The Sentence as a 'Picture' and as a 'Truth-function'	10
5. The Preparation for the Necessity of Silence	12
6. The Comments on the Comments	14
II. THE WORLD AS A FACT	18
1. Can the World Meaningfully be said to be the Totality of Facts?	18
2. Categories	20
3. Enigmatic 'Things'	23
4. The Structure of the Field of Perception	23
5. The Organization of the 'World Field'	26
III. THE CONCEPT OF A SACHVERHALT	29
1. All Sachverhalte are not Tatsachen	29
2. Sachverhalte are 'Atomic'	32
3. Sachverhalte are Independent of One Another	33
4. Sachlage and Tatsache	34
5. Summary	36
IV. LOGICAL SPACE	38
1. A Model of a 'Logical Structure' of the World	38
2. 'Logical Space'	42
3. Yes-and-no Dimensions	44

4. Is Every Logical Space Reducible to a Yes-and-no Space?	46
5. The Logical Structure of the World in a Yes-and-no Space	47
6. Welt and Wirklichkeit	50
7. The Logical Space as a Space of 'Possible Worlds'	52
8. Logical Position	54
9. Hume's Thesis	58
V. THE CONCEPT OF SUBSTANCE	61
1. 'Things': Individual Objects and Predicates	61
2. The Simpliceness of 'Things'	63
3. The 'Things' as the Substance of the World	66
4. The Independence and Non-independence of 'Things'	66
5. The Logical Form and the Categories	69
6. Logically Homogeneous Spaces with Many-valued Dimensions	72
7. Logically Unhomogeneous Spaces	77
8. Logical Form and Internal Qualities	79
9. The Substance as What is Persistent in Time	81
10. Framework Questions and Questions about What is the Case	84
VI. THE CONCEPT OF A PICTURE	88
1. Representations of Facts	88
2. The Concept of an Articulate Field	89
3. The Concept of 'Isomorphism'	91
4. Isomorphic Representations	94
5. The Concept of a Picture in the Tractatus	96
6. What a Picture Represents and What It Depicts or Presents	98
7. The Form of Representation	99
8. Adequate and Inadequate Pictures	102
9. Naturalistic Pictures	108
10. 'Content', 'Structure' and 'Form'	108
11. Fictitious Pictures	109

CHAPTER	PAGE
12. Keys and Clues	111
13. Picture and Thought	112
VII. THE SENTENCE AS A PICTURE	117
1. The 'Name Theory' of Linguistic Meaning	118
2. The Concept of a 'Name'	120
3. The Problem of Sentence Meaning	126
4. The Analogy between a Sentence and a Picture	128
5. The False and the True Key of Interpretation	130
6. The Sentence-token as a Fact	133
7. What Names Are	135
8. The Problem of the False Sentence	140
9. Fictitious Sentences	141
10. Summary	142
VIII. THE DESCRIPTIVE CONTENT OF COM- POUND SENTENCES	143
1. How do Logical Connectives Signify?	144
2. Complete Descriptions and Pictures	146
3. The Descriptive Content of Compound Sentences	151
4. Quantification	153
5. Identity	154
6. The General Form of a Sentence	155
IX. DESCRIPTIVE CONTENT AND MOOD	157
1. Sentence-radical and Modal Component	159
2. Modal Operators	162
3. The Sentence-radical as a Picture	164
4. The Concept of Truth in the Semantics of Sentence- radicals	165
5. The Semantics of Moods	167
6. The Assertion Sign	170
7. Sense and Direction	170
8. The Fundamental Role of Modal Games in Teaching the Use of Language	173
9. Summary	175

X.	INTERNAL STRUCTURE OF LANGUAGE AND REALITY	177
1.	The 'Ontological Picture Theory' of Language	177
2.	What can be 'Shown' and What can be 'Said'	178
3.	Corresponding Statements on Language and Reality	182
4.	Logical Syntax	186
5.	Logical Rules	197
6.	Elementary Sentences	203
7.	Variables and the Theory of Types	206
8.	Philosophy as an Activity	207
9.	The Logical Mood	209
10.	Syntactical Metaphors	211
11.	Semantics and Metaphysics	213
XI.	WITTGENSTEIN AS A KANTIAN PHILO- SOPHER	214
1.	Kantian Philosophy	215
2.	Wittgenstein's Transcendental Deductions	218
3.	Transcendental Lingualism	220
4.	Nonsense	222
INDEX
(i)	General	231
(ii)	Passages from Wittgenstein's Writings	240