

Contents

Preface	page ix
Introduction	I
1 Overview: justice against virtue?	9
1.1 Universalists and particularists: ancient origins	11
1.2 Universalists and particularists: current confrontations	16
1.3 Modernity, universalists and particularists: some popular stories	23
1.4 Modernity, universalists and particularists: some alternative stories	31
2 Practical reason: abstraction and construction	38
2.1 Abstraction and idealization	39
2.2 Constructivism in ethics: Rawlsian models	44
2.3 Constructing practical reason	48
2.4 Constructing reason and constructing ethics	59
3 Focus: action, intelligibility and principles	66
3.1 Focusing on results: intelligibility and consequences	69
3.2 Focusing on the sources of action: virtue and action	71
3.3 Universality, uniformity and differences	73
3.4 Empty formalism, rule-following and radical particularism	77
3.5 Some conclusions	89
4 Scope: agents and subjects: who counts?	91
4.1 Ethical standing: universalists and particularists	93
4.2 Constructing the scope of ethical concern	97
4.3 Acknowledging plurality, connection and finitude	100
4.4 Denying plurality, connection and finitude	107
4.5 Cosmopolitan scope: distant strangers and future generations	113

5	Structure: obligations and rights	122
5.1	Principles and requirements	125
5.2	Justice: obligations with rights	128
5.3	Required virtues: obligations without rights	136
5.4	Taking obligations seriously	141
5.5	Embodied obligations	146
6	Content I: principles for all: towards justice	154
6.1	Inclusive universal principles	155
6.2	Conflict and consistency	157
6.3	Universalizability and the rejection of injury	161
6.4	Just institutions: rejecting injury	166
6.5	Just institutions: rejecting direct injury	168
6.6	Just institutions: rejecting indirect injury	174
6.7	Towards justice: principles, design and judgement	178
7	Content II: principles for all: towards virtue	184
7.1	Required and optional virtues	187
7.2	Vindicating social virtues: why justice is not enough	189
7.3	Selective care and concern	195
7.4	Varieties of social virtue	200
7.5	Supererogation and optional excellences	206
7.6	Towards justice with virtue	209
	Bibliography	213
	Index	222