

CONTENTS

Part I

I. THE STRATEGY OF PRACTICAL CRITICISM	1
1. How to Proceed: Appeal to Linguistic Intuitions?	2
2. A Reforming Definition: Rational Action and the Best Thing to Do	10
3. How to Proceed: Appeal to Ethical Intuitions?	16
II. WANTING AND PLEASURE	24
1. Wants and Aversions (Valence)	25
2. The Pleasant and the Unpleasant	35
3. Some Implications	42
III. THE COGNITIVE THEORY OF ACTION	46
IV. THE CRITICISM OF ACTIONS	70
V. THE PSYCHOLOGY OF PLEASURE AND DESIRES	88
1. Innate and Conditioned Dispositions to Like and Dislike	89
2. Desire and Pleasant Experiences	95
3. Direct Conditioning of Desires	98
4. Other Basic Mechanisms?	100
5. De-Conditioning	103
VI. THE CRITICISM OF PLEASURES AND INTRINSIC DESIRES	110
1. Some Types of 'Mistaken' Desires, Aversions, or Pleasures	115
2. Rational Desires and the Concept of the Intrinsically Good	126
VII. SOME RATIONAL PLEASURES AND DESIRES	130
1. Desires for What is Natively Liked	130
2. Pleasure and Ethical Hedonism	132
3. Benevolence	138
VIII. THE FORCE OF KNOWING WHAT IS RATIONAL	149
1. The Force of Knowing What is Rational to Do (Desires Taken as They Are)	152
2. The Force of Knowing What it is Rational to Want	154
3. Should One Act as if One's Desires were Rational?	160

Part II

IX. THE CONCEPT OF A MORAL CODE	163
1. The Nature of a Social Moral System	164
2. Moral Codes and Institutional Expectations	176
3. Could a Universal Moral Code be Effective?	179
X. JUSTIFICATION AND THE CONCEPT OF THE MORALLY RIGHT	183
1. The Justification of Moral Codes	183
2. The Concept of Choice of (Tendency to Support) a Moral Code	188
3. The Definition of 'Morally Right'	193
4. A Possible Kantian Modification of the Definition	196
XI. RATIONALLY PREFERRED MORAL CODES AND THE GENERAL WELFARE	200
1. An Overview of the Choice Problem	200
2. Types of Valenced Outcome Relevant to Support of a Moral System	203
3. The Irrationality of Some Desires	208
4. The Concept of a Viable Moral System	212
5. Rational Choice and Utilitarianism	214
XII. THREE DIFFERENT DERIVATIONS OF THE RIGHT	224
1. The Ideal Observer Theory	225
2. The Theory of R. M. Hare	229
3. Choice Behind a Veil of Ignorance: the Theory of John Rawls	234
XIII. WELFARE: THE CONCEPT, MEASUREMENT, AND INTERPERSONAL COMPARISONS	246
1. The Objection to Desire Theories	247
2. The Measurement of Happiness	253
3. Interpersonal Comparisons of Enjoyment	257
XIV. THREE MONISTIC MORAL CODES	266
1. Egoism	267
2. Act Utilitarianism	271
3. Utilitarian Generalization	278
XV. THE CONCEPT OF A PLURALISTIC WELFARE-MAXIMIZING MORAL SYSTEM	286
1. The Variable Features of Plural Moral Systems	287
2. The Content of a Welfare-Maximizing Moral System	289
3. Paradoxes for the Plural Ideal-Code Utilitarian?	296
4. A Final Puzzle	300

XVI. JUSTICE, EQUALITY, AND THE MAXIMIZATION OF WELFARE	306
1. The Problem about Justice	306
2. A Welfare-Maximizing Principle about Allocations of Income and Goods	309
3. Why Equal Monetary Income?	311
4. Why Supplements for the Ill and Handicapped?	316
5. Recompense for Services	319
XVII. IS IT ALWAYS RATIONAL TO ACT MORALLY?	327
1. The Concept of Self-Interest	328
2. Would a Rational Person Ever Act Morally Contrary to Self-Interest?	331
REFERENCES	337
INDEX	355