

CONTENTS

PREFACE	page xi
TRANSLATOR'S NOTE	xiv
INTRODUCTION	I
The Who and the What, p. 3. The primordial character of the problem of who decides, p. 4. Has the question of what is a good act of government become otiose under democracy? p. 6. Suppose the problem of the What is insoluble, p. 8. The dangers of an avowedly normative approach, p. 10.
PART I. AUTHORITY
1. THE ESSENCE OF POLITICS	13
2. AUTHORITY	15
The model of the voluntary association, p. 26. The model of domination imposed from without, p. 29. Definition of authority, p. 29. Virtues of authority, p. 30. Origin of sovereigns, p. 31. The various kinds of associations, p. 33. The surety, p. 35. Authority and metaphor, p. 36. The lightning conductor, p. 38. Authority and the social tie, p. 39.
3. THE OFFICE OF LEADERSHIP AND THE OFFICE OF ADJUSTMENT	26
The bridge of Arcola and the oak of Vincennes, p. 40. The fixity of the frame, p. 41. The crown, p. 43. Rex and Augur, p. 45. The lesson of Bathsheba, p. 48. The stabiliser, p. 50. A principle of classification? p. 54.
4. THE GROUP	40
The hearth, p. 57. The milieu of existence, p. 59. The team of action, p. 62. The man of the project, p. 64. The master builder, p. 66. The psychological angle, p. 67. Militiae and domi, p. 68.
5. OF THE RELATIONS BETWEEN AUTHORITIES	56
Natural, institutional, and constraining authority, p. 71. Various forms of the imperative, p. 73. The link with authority, p. 75. The link with authority is not a legal tie, p. 76. Are men inconstant as regards authorities? p. 77. The weakness of the sovereign, p. 78. 'The peers', p. 79. Those going up and those going down, p. 80. The great sergeant-major, p. 82. The sovereign and legal persons, p. 84.

PART II. THE POLITICAL GOOD

page 85

6. OF BENEVOLENCE IN THE SOVEREIGN WILL

87

The absolutism of the sovereign will, p. 88. That the change of incumbent does not affect the problem of benevolence in the governing will, p. 91. As to the qualities required in the governing will, p. 92. The sovereign will generalised, p. 94. The pair of sovereigns, p. 97. The moral hold, p. 102. The will for good and the intelligence, p. 103. The sovereign and his model, p. 104.

7. THE PROBLEM OF THE COMMON GOOD

105

First question: is the common good self-evident? p. 105. Second question: is the common good entirely subjective? p. 107. Third question: is the common good comprised in the good of individuals? p. 109. Fourth question: does the common good consist in the social tie itself? p. 112. Fifth question: is life in society the institutionalisation of trust? p. 115. Sixth question: can the political authority promote social friendship? p. 116. Uncertainty is the great principle of disassociation, p. 119. The problem of obligations in a mobile society, p. 121.

8. OF SOCIAL FRIENDSHIP

123

Immobility as a principle, p. 123. The prison of the corollaries, p. 126. The common good and the collective social interest, p. 128. Varieties of social friendship, p. 130. The inevitable diversity of men, p. 132. The nostalgia for the small community, p. 134. Closed society and open social network, p. 136.

9. JUSTICE

139

Of what or of whom is justice the attribute? p. 139. First conception of justice: respect for rights, p. 141. Prestige of the preservative notion, p. 142. Second conception of justice: the perfect order, p. 144. Should justice be identified with other qualities of social arrangements? p. 146. Justice as mere conformity to the rule laid down, p. 147. The feeling for the just, p. 149. The notion of relevance, p. 153. The problems of justice, p. 154. That resources are fruits and what follows from it, p. 158. The share-out of the fruits within the team, p. 160. That it is impossible to establish a just social order, p. 164. In what does the rule of justice consist? p. 165.

CONTENTS

PART III. THE SOVEREIGN

page 167

10. ON THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE IDEA OF THE SOVEREIGN WILL

169

That absolute sovereignty is a modern idea, p. 169. The monopolisation of sovereignty, p. 171. The ladder of commands, p. 171. The plenitude of power, p. 173. The role of parliament in the concentration of authority, p. 175. Monopolisation is achieved, p. 178. Various types of superiority distinguished by L'Oyseau, p. 180. Alliance of bourgeois ownership with the royal power, p. 181. Description of sovereignty, p. 181. Nationalism and 'Majestas', p. 182. Limits of sovereign power, p. 183.

11. THE SOVEREIGN AS LEGISLATOR

186

The concrete advance of power, p. 186. The advance of the royal prerogative, p. 187. Absolute sovereignty, p. 189. Sovereignty as attribute, p. 190. The sovereign and the law, p. 192. Justice and will, p. 194. Why did will come to the front? p. 195. Sovereignty in itself, p. 196.

12. THE THEORY OF THE LIMITED WILL AND 'FORTUNATE POWERLESSNESS'

199

The 'Ancien Régime' rejected the despotic ideas in vogue today, p. 200. When is the command legitimate? p. 200. The practical problem, p. 202. Needed precautions, p. 203. The fortunate powerlessness of kings, p. 204. The regulated will, p. 206. Vicar of God—and a minor, p. 208. The absolute and the arbitrary, p. 209. The two doctrines of resistance to royal arbitrariness, p. 211. The 'feed-back', p. 213.

PART IV. LIBERTY

215

13. THE POLITICAL CONSEQUENCES OF DESCARTES

217

Man in general, p. 218. That every 'idea of man' is necessarily ambiguous, p. 219. The Cartesian dichotomy, p. 224. 'The political consequences of Descartes', p. 227. Conceiving and understanding, p. 227. Self-evidence in political theories, p. 228. The problem of the orchard, p. 229. Democracy of the understanding, p. 230.

14. THE POLITICAL CONSEQUENCES OF HOBBS

231

The state of society, p. 231. The nature of man, p. 233. The institution of the commonwealth, p. 234. Fear and wisdom, p. 236. The Diktat, p. 237. Civil religion, p. 238. The liberalism of Hobbes, p. 238. Hobbes, father of political economy, p. 239. Politics and hedonism, p. 241. Necessity of political stability in the Hobbesian system, p. 242. Hobbesian man and the citizen, p. 243. The lesson of Hobbes, p. 244.

CONTENTS

15. LIBERTY

page 247

'The chains', p. 247. I. Liberty as power: the classical definition, p. 248. Liberty as a truncated circle, p. 250. Liberty as means, p. 253. Means as social grants, p. 255. How liberty loses any common meaning, p. 257. II. Liberty as dignity: 'no man is an island', p. 260. On obligations, p. 261. The free man as volunteer, p. 262. Libertarian harmony, p. 263. Of arbitrariness in laws, p. 265. The internal tension within the individual, p. 267. Liberty as participation and as isolation, p. 268. Babylon and Icaria, p. 271.

16. LIBERTY OF OPINION AND NATURAL LIGHT

276

What is called liberty of opinion is a free clash of opinions, p. 277. The historical origins, p. 278. Opinions and behaviours, p. 280. The postulate of convergence, p. 281. The postulate of divergence, p. 284. The principle of dispersion, p. 287. That moral relativism cannot lead to toleration, p. 288. Panorama, p. 289. Generating lines of various social philosophies, p. 293.

CONCLUSION

295

Political authorities not the sole subject of Political Science, p. 295. The Rule of Law: what it means, p. 297. The initiative: where it lies, p. 298. The opportunity to generate a group, p. 299. Rex: the stabiliser, p. 300. State action: a companion to individual initiative, p. 300. The unfreedom of government, p. 302. The character of Political Science, p. 303.

INDEX

305