

Contents

Author's Preface to the English Translation	ix
Translator's Acknowledgment	xiii

PART ONE

Fascism and the Era of World Wars

1 Fascism as Characteristic of an Era	3
2 Fascism in Europe (1919-1945)	10
Fascist Movements	10
Interpretations of Fascism	16
First Definition	20
3 Methods and Objective of Study	22
Criteria of Selection	22

PART TWO

The Action Française

1 The Disparate Roots	29
Introduction: Revolution and the Political Doctrine	29
Christian Conservatism: de Maistre and de Bonald	34
Critical Liberalism: Comte, Le Play, Renan, Taine, Fustel de Coulanges	37
Radical Conservatism: de La Tour du Pin, Drumont, Barrès	48
2 History	54
Introduction: The Dreyfus Affair	54
Maurras' Development to 1898	58
The Action Française to the Founding of its Newspaper	65
From the Founding of the Newspaper to the End of the War	68
From the End of the War to the Condemnation by Rome	73
Condemnation by the Vatican	76

	From the Vatican's Condemnation to the Defeat of France	77
	Vichy	80
	Charles Maurras' Trial, Imprisonment, and Death	84
3	Practice as Consequence	88
	Introduction: The Place of Practice and Its Motivations	88
	Organization of the Action Française	89
	The Leadership	94
	The Style	96
4	The Doctrine	100
	Introduction: The Hidden System	100
	Fear as the Origin	101
	State and Sovereignty	103
	State and War	110
	State and Classes	113
	The Enemy as a Whole	120
	The Battle	127
	The Philosophical Basis	135

PART THREE Italian Fascism

1	History	145
	Fascism and the Action Française	145
	How the European Knot Was Tied in Italy	145
	Digression on Method	150
	Mussolini the Marxist (1902-1914)	151
	The War as Revolution	167
	Struggle for Social Democracy	178
	Nationalism	182
	D'Annunzio in Fiume	185
	Mussolini's Darkest Year	188
	The Socialist Face of 1920	191
	Fascist "Re-action"	196
	Mussolini's Unexpected Rise and His Last Battle for Coherence	202
	The Beginnings of National Fascism	209
	National Fascist Totalitarian Development Dictatorship	217
	The Last Autonomous Stage (1935-1937)	225
	Despotism of Conquest and Satellite State	228
	Return to the Origins?— Repubblica di Salò	236
2	The Fixed Doctrine	243

3	The Irsome Precursors	247
4	Practice as Premise	250
	Up to the March on Rome	250
	After the Seizure of Power (to 1931)	259
	The Starace Era (1931–1939)	265
	Epilogue	269

PART FOUR

National Socialism

1	National Socialism and Fascism	275
2	The Background: The Race Doctrine	277
3	History	287
	Adolf Hitler	287
	Austria: The Progressive Feudal State	294
	The German Reich: The Feudal Industrial State	298
	War, Revolution, and Peace Treaty	304
	Hitler's Political Beginnings	312
	Teachers and Forces Surrounding the Early Hitler	323
	The Fresh Start (1925–1930)	333
	Appeal to the Masses and Rise to Power (1930–1931)	337
	Single-Minded Seizure of Power (1933)	342
	War in Peacetime (1934–1939)	347
	Levels of War and Degrees of Resistance	354
	Universal Hostility and End	360
4	Practice as Fulfillment	365
	1919–1923	365
	1925–1932	370
	1933–1939	374
	1939–1945	394
5	The Doctrine in Context	402
	Fear and Its Intentions	402
	Unconditional Sovereignty	407
	Eternal War	409
	Absolute Supremacy	410
	Distant Models	414
	Global Struggle for “Recovery”	416
	Nature and Antinature	419

PART FIVE

Fascism as a Metapolitical Phenomenon

The Concept of Transcendence	429
Marx: Philosophical Discovery and Critique of Bourgeois Society	434
Nietzsche: The Prebourgeois Soil of "Culture"	441
Max Weber: The Theoretician of Bourgeois Society before Fascism	446
Outline of a Transcendental Sociology of this Period	450
Appendix A	455
Appendix B	459
Notes	463
Selected Reading List	547
Index	549