

Contents

Preface ix

Bertrand Russell

1	The Challenge of Scepticism	3
	A. Russell's Life and Works	3
	B. His Conception of Philosophy	10
	C. The Motives for Logical Construction	15
	D. Classes and the Theory of Types	20
2	The Theory of Descriptions	28
	A. On Denotation	28
	B. Russell's Analysis of Descriptions	32
	C. The Meaning of Existence	35
	D. Russell's Theory of Names	38
	E. Evaluation of the Theory	47
3	Logical Atomism – Part 1: The Primary Objects	54
	A. Criterion of Simplicity	54
	B. The World of Sensibilia	57
	C. The Requirement of Atomicity	66
	D. Particulars and Universals	69
4	Logical Atomism – Part 2: Russell's Theories of Judgement and of Truth	80
	A. Propositions and Facts	80
	B. The Thesis of Extensionality	91
	C. Russell's Theories of Judgement	98
	D. His Theories of Truth	105
5	Russell's Conception of What There Is	110
	A. His Neutral Monism	110
	(i) The Constitution of Minds	110
	(ii) His Account of Causality	113
	(iii) His Analysis of Memory	117

B. The Location of Percepts	121
C. The Physical World	129
G. E. Moore
6 The Refutation of Idealism	137
A. Moore's Life and Works	137
B. His Interpretation of the Principle that To Be is To Be Perceived	143
C. His Criticism of this Principle	147
D. The Dogma of Internal Relations	155
7 The Defence of Common Sense	161
A. The Common-sense View of the World	161
B. Moore's Proof of an External World	168
C. An Extension of Moore's Argument	178
8 Moore's Treatment of Abstract Entities	188
A. The Reality of Concepts	188
(i) Moore's Early Platonism	188
(ii) His Conception of Reality	190
B. The Nature of Universals	195
C. The Existence of Classes	202
D. Are There Propositions?	205
E. Propositions and Facts	212
9 The Fruits of Analysis	220
A. Moore's Conception of Analysis	220
B. The Paradox of Analysis and the Naturalistic Fallacy	228
C. The Role of Sense-data	232
D. The Analysis of Propositions about Material Objects	240
Index	247