

CONTENTS

Preface	vii
INTRODUCTION	1
I. Life, Influence and Writings	1
II. Sophisms in Medieval Philosophy	3
III. Buridan's Work in the Scholastic Tradition	6
IV. The Ontology of Buridianian Nominalism	14
A. Propositions	15
B. Attributes	18
C. Relations	21
D. Classes	21
V. Buridan's Theory of Language	22
A. Signification	23
B. Supposition	29
C. Connotation	42
D. Insolubles	49

Sophisms on Meaning and Truth

CHAPTER I. ON SIGNIFICATION	63
A. Introduction	63
B. Sophisms	64
(1) Every spoken proposition is true	64
(2) A horse is an ass	64
(3) God is not	65
(4) This name "chimera" signifies nothing	66
(5) Chimeras are complex signifiabiles	68
(6) No man lies	70
C. Conclusions	70
(1) Written letters signify spoken sounds	70
(2) Spoken words signify concepts of the mind	70
(3) By every concept something is conceived	71
(4) Every significant word and act signifies something	72
(5) This name "chimera" does not signify a chimera	72
(6) A simple concept stands for that of which it is a concept	73
(7) Not every complex concept stands for all that which it signifies	74

(8)	Some complex concepts stand for nothing and yet many beings are conceived by them	74
(9)	A simple term subordinated to a non-complex concept stands for the things conceived by the concept	75
(10)	A simple concept does not correspond to this name "chimera"	75
(11)	A complex concept corresponds to this name "chimera"	76
D.	Solutions of Sophisms	78
(1)	False	78
(2)	False	78
(3)	False	79
(4)	False	80
(5)	False	80
(6)	A contingent proposition, often false	81
CHAPTER II. TRUTH-CONDITIONS FOR CATEGORICAL PROPOSITIONS		83
A.	Sophisms	83
(1)	Aristotle's horse does not exist	83
(2)	Aristotle's horse walked	84
(3)	A chimera is a chimera	84
(4)	A vacuum is a place not filled with a body	84
(5)	A man is an ass	85
(6)	I am speaking falsely	85
B.	Conclusions	86
(1)	It is not necessary that a spoken proposition be true, if howsoever it signifies within the mind, so it is	86
(2)	It is not required for the truth of a spoken proposition that howsoever it signifies outside the mind, so it is	86-87
(3)	This proposition "Man is an ass" does not signify man-being-ass	87
(4)	Man-being is signified by this term "man"	88
(5)	Man-being is signified by the proposition "A man is an ass"	89
(6)	Man-having-been is signified by this term "man" and by this proposition "A man is an ass"	89
(7)	Aristotle-being is signified by the term "man" and the proposition "A man is an ass"	89
(8)	A true affirmative proposition of present tense is not true because whatever it signifies exists	90
(9)	It does not follow that an affirmative proposition is true merely because its terms stand for the same things	90
(10)	For the truth of an affirmative categorical, it is required that the terms stand for the same things	90
(11)	For the truth of a negative categorical, it suffices that the terms do not stand for the same things	91
(12)	For the truth of an indefinite or particular categorical

	affirmative, it is required and suffices that the subject and predicate stand for the same things	92
(13)	For the truth of an affirmative universal, it is required and suffices that the predicate stand for at least those things for which the subject stands	93
(14)	Summary of truth-conditions	93
C.	Solutions of Sophisms	94
(1)	True	94
(2)	True	95
(3)	False	95
(4)	False	95
(5)	False	96
(6)	Solution reserved for Chapter VIII	96
CHAPTER III.	ON SUPPOSITION	97
A.	Sophisms	97
(1)	God being unjust is to be denied by all the faithful	97
(2)	You are an ass	97
(3)	Man is a species	98
(4)	A genus is in more than a most general genus	98
(5)	A name is trisyllabic	99
B.	Remarks	99
(1)	A definition of supposition	99
(2)	Personal and material supposition	100
C.	Solutions of Sophisms	101
(1)	True, if taken in material supposition	101
(2)	False, if taken in personal supposition	102
(3)	True, if taken materially	103
(4)	False, according to personal supposition	103
(5)	False, if taken materially	103
D.	Sophisms	103
(6)	There has always been some man	104
(7)	Some ass every man sees	104
(8)	Every man is an animal	104
(9)	Every man is not an animal	105
E.	Remarks	105
(3)	Division of personal supposition	105
(4)	Rules for inferences involving quantified propositions	106
F.	Solutions of Sophisms	106
(6)	It would be true, if the world were eternal	106
(7)	False, given the case posited	107
(8)	True	107
(9)	True	107
CHAPTER IV.	ON CONNOTATION	109
A.	Sophisms	109
(1)	Socrates and the white are the same	109

(2) You ate raw meat today	110
(3) The white will be black	110
(4) An old man will be a boy	111
(5) Socrates will be running tomorrow	111
(6) I saw Peter and Robert	111
B. Remarks	112
(1) A term connotes all that it signifies beyond that for which it stands	112
(2) A term connotes what it connotes as somehow determinant or not determinant of that for which it stands	112
(3) From the different sorts of connotation are taken the different categories	112-113
(4) The connotation of a term is affected by the tense and modality of the proposition in which it occurs	113
C. Solutions of Sophisms	116
(1) True	116
(2) False	118
(3) True, given the posited case	120
(4) True	120
(5) True, if "tomorrow" is part of the copula	120
(6) True	121
D. Sophisms	121
(7) This dog is your father	121
(8) The whiteness of Socrates is his similarity to Plato	121
E. Remarks	122
(5) The connotation of a term is altered by its conjunction with another connotative term	122
(6) The connotation of a possessive pronoun differs from that of a possessive adjective	122
F. Solutions of Sophisms	123
(7) The consequence, of which this is the conclusion, is invalid	123
(8) True	123
G. Sophisms	124
(9) You know the one approaching	124
(10) You know the coins in my purse to be even in number	124
(11) You believe yourself to be an ass	125
(12) Socrates appears to be other than he is	125
H. Remarks	126
(7) Cognitive verbs effect some special kinds of connotation	126
(8) The connotation of a term occurring before a cognitive verb differs from that of one occurring after a cognitive verb	126
(9) Other verbs which effect these kinds of connotation	127
(10) Differences among cognitive verbs	127

CONTENTS	xiii
I. Sophisms	128
(13) Anyone knowing the conclusion that every triangle has three angles equal to two right angles, every isosceles triangle is known by him to have three angles equal to two right angles	128
(14) Socrates the astronomer knows some stars to be above our hemisphere	131
J. Solutions of Sophisms	133
(9) True, given the posited case	133
(10) False, since you do not know what is in my purse	134
(11) False	134
(12) False	135
K. A Final Sophism	137
(15) I owe you a horse (or similarly: I owe you a denarius)	137
CHAPTER V. ON AMPLIATION	144
Sophisms	144
(1) Some horse does not exist	144
(2) No man is dead	145
(3) Antichrist is	146
(4) Every old horse is going to die	148
(5) The corrupt is to be generated, and that which is to be generated is the corrupt	149
(6) Young Socrates was going to argue	150
(7) Non-being is known	152
(8) Everything which will be is (or: Everything which will be being is being)	153
(9) "Man" and "risible" are convertible	155
(10) Socrates will die today	157
CHAPTER VI. ON CONVENTIONAL SIGNIFICATION	158
A. Sophism	158
(1) You will be an ass	158
B. Conclusions	159
(1) The proposition "A man is an ass" could be true in some other language	159
(2) But it could not be true in our language as it now stands	159
(3) Given our language, the proposition "A man is an ass" is impossible	159
(4) But that impossible proposition might become a necessary proposition	160
(5) A proposition might be at once true for me and false for you	160
(6) Determinations of truth-value should be based on the most common significations at the time the judgment is made	161

C. Solution of First Sophism	161
(1) False, given present significations	161
D. Sophisms	161
(2) Baf will be baptised	161
(3) This expression "A" is a proposition	163
(4) It is in our power that a man is an ass	164
(5) You are an ass or you are not a man	166
(6) This can be true: "Man is non-man"	167
(7) You do not know whether a proposition such as "A man is an ass" is true	168
CHAPTER VII. TIME AND TRUTH	169
Sophisms	169
(1) No spoken proposition is true	169
(2) No one can contradict me concerning any spoken proposition of mine	170
(3) The proposition "Socrates is sitting" is true at some time, during which entire time, Socrates does not sit	171
(4) This copulative "Socrates sits and Socrates does not sit" is true	172
(5) This copulative is true: "Aristotle disputes and Antichrist preaches"	173
(6) In every time Socrates runs	175
(7) The same spoken or written proposition is true or false to all men of the same language, and without any new imposition or requirement	176
(8) All which is moved was moved previously	177
(9) No change is instantaneous	178
CHAPTER VIII. INSOLUBLES	180
A. Sophism	180
(1) Every proposition is affirmative, so none is negative	180
B. Conclusions	182
(1) A consequence may be valid, of which the antecedent is true without the truth of the consequent	182
(2) In a valid consequence, the antecedent could be true and the consequent not true	182
(3) Some proposition is possible, which could not be true	182
(4) If a consequence is valid, it is impossible for the antecedent to be true and the consequent false	182
(5) It is not sufficient for the validity of a consequence that it be impossible for the antecedent to be true without the truth of the consequent formed at the same time as the antecedent	183
C. Solution of Sophism	183
(1) The consequent is possible, but could not be true	183

D. Sophisms

(2)	No proposition is negative; hence, a certain proposition is negative	184
(3)	If every man runs, then an ass runs	185
(4)	I say that a man is an ass	187
(5)	Whatever Socrates hears Plato says	188
(6)	It is true to say a man to be an animal	189
(7)	Every proposition is false	191
(8)	Plato speaks falsely	196
(9)	Socrates speaks truly	200
(10)	There are just as many true propositions as there are false propositions	202
(11)	I speak falsely	203
(12)	God is and some copulative is false	206
(13)	Socrates knows the proposition written on the wall to be doubted by him	207
(14)	Socrates sits, or the disjunctive written on the wall is doubted by Plato	210
(15)	To someone is proposed a proposition doubted by him	213
(16)	You will answer negatively	217
(17)	You will throw me in the water	219
(18)	Socrates wishes to eat	220
(19)	Socrates curses Plato	221
(20)	Socrates wishes Plato evil	223