

Contents

Preface	xv
Acknowledgments	xvii
Introduction	1

1 Beings, human beings and persons 7

What do we mean by 'value'? 8

Humans and persons 9

I When does life begin? 10

The potentiality argument 11

When does self begin? 12

II When does life begin to matter morally? 14

Strategy 1: what is a person? 14

Strategy 2: what is valuable? 15

Valuable lives should not be ended 16

Convergence of the two strategies 17

The concept of the person 18

III How do we recognise persons? 19

There's value in numbers 21

IV Persons and full human beings 22

V Once a person always a person? 25

How permanent is permanent? 26

VI Conclusion 27

2 Above all do no harm 28

Positive and negative 29

No negative responsibility	31
Decisions can be decisive	31
Selective treatment	33
The argument from brutalisation	35
The argument from lack of consent	36
The slippery slope argument	36
The last door argument	37
The argument from self-deception	37
Ordinary and extraordinary treatment	39
Law, logic and journalism	39
Feeling guilty	41
Active euthanasia is not the best solution?	41
Selective treatment or active euthanasia?	42
A difficulty with omissions	42
Side-effects and double-effects	43
Side-effects revisited	45
Terminal care	45
Unmasking the difference	46
3 Must doctors help their patients?	48
What is 'medical treatment'?	49
Postponing death	49
Refusing patients and refusing treatment	50
What is a doctor's business?	51
Wicked men and evil deeds	52
Two faces of the obligation to treat	53
Rescue is everyone's business	54
Contract killers	54
The contractual obligation	55
Saving life is a moral issue	56
What is worth a life?	59
Incommensurability of values	60
Sharing the burden	61
Scarcity of doctors	62
Comparative judgments	62
4 Killing: A caring thing to do?	64
I Death removes a threat	66
Understanding and justification	67
The justification of self defence	68

Guilty threats	69
Innocent threats and shields	70
The principle of non-vicious choice	71
Innocent threats and scarce resources	74
Non-lethal threats	75
Guilt and innocence	77
II Death is a benefit	77
III Wanting to live and wanting to die	79
IV Death promotes other values	81
V Safeguards	81
VI The justification of euthanasia	82
The real problem of euthanasia	83
Euthanasia within health care	84
The government's euthanasia programme	85
5 The value of life	87
I The moral significance of age	88
The anti-ageist argument	89
The fair innings argument	91
Numbers of lives and numbers of years	94
Extra life-time versus extra lives	95
Threshold of discrimination	97
People versus policies	98
The fallacy of life-time views	98
Worthwhile life-time	99
Fair innings or no ageism?	101
II Worthwhile lives	102
III The moral advantage of dependants and friends	103
IV The moral advantage of usefulness	107
V Moral worth	108
VI What should we do?	110
6 The beginnings of life	111
I What's happening now	112
The spare embryos	112
Permutations	113
Freezing	113

Immediate and proximate possibilities	114
Cell and tissue banks	115
Two reminders	116
II Experiments on embryos	117
Pain and suffering	117
Consent	118
Transplantation orders	119
Condemned to death?	120
Consent again	121
Property rights	122
Conclusion	123
III The slippery slope	123
Cloning	124
Organ banks	124
The mad dictator problem	125
Genetic engineering	125
Artificial parthenogenesis	126
Slippery slopes again	127
The principle of the dangerous precedent	127
What should we do?	128
IV The Warnock report	129
The ethical presuppositions	130
The Warnock proposals	133
7 Whose body is it anyway?	136
I Who's mother whose baby?	137
Egg or embryo donation and womb leasing or lending	137
Amateurs and professionals	137
Real mothers	139
The claims of a surrogate mother	140
Is there anything wrong with surrogacy?	141
The Warnock objections	142
Harmful social effects	145
Should disadvantaged children be born?	146
Happy oblivion?	148
Is it wrong to give birth to disadvantaged children?	148
Is it wrong to produce gifted children?	149
II Morally unsound parents	150
Gay and single parents	152

Disadvantages of screening parents	153
Posthumous parents	155
Commerce versus altruism	155
8 A woman's right to choose	157
I To be or not to be—a mother	157
It's my body!	157
Abortion and the concept of the person	159
Whose right to choose?	159
Father's liberation: an hypothesis?	160
Contracts with embryos	161
The value of consistency	162
The argument from vindictiveness	163
II Doing it my way	164
III Final choice: the all-female world	166
The plan	169
The all-female world	170
Why not do so?	171
The final solution	172
A woman's right to choose?	173
9 Sexual morality and the natural	174
Sexual morality	175
Obscenity and disgust	177
Respecting norms and respecting other people	178
Perversion and the unnatural	180
Popular ideas of the natural	186
Good sex	188
Anti-social sex	189
Conclusion	190
10 Respect for persons I	192
I Respect for persons	193
(1) Concern for the welfare of others	193
(2) Respect for the wishes of others	194
II What is autonomy?	195
(1) Defects in control	196
(2) Defects in reasoning	197

(3) Defects in information	198
(4) Defects in stability	198
III Is paternalist interference justified?	200
Maximally autonomous decisions	200
Irremediable defects	202
Hard cases: suicide	203
IV Consent	205
Consent to clinical trials	205
Adequate disclosure and real consent	206
The right to remain in ignorance	208
The obligation to tell those who wish to know	209
An autonomous community	212
11 Respect for persons II	214
I Children, lunatics, barbarians and animals	214
Children	215
Lunatics	216
For the protection of others	218
Animals	218
II Respect for the dead	219
The gift relationship	221
III Self-inflicted illness	222
Justice	223
Liberty or justice?	224
IV Confidentiality	225
Why keep confidences?	226
Four cases	228
Respect for persons revisited	230
V Ultimate principles and moral values	233
12 Death is abolished	238
I What is death?	238
Death of the human organism	239
Biological death	240
II Live persons and dead bodies	241
Loss of personhood	242
III Machine people	242
The frozen un-dead	243

IV Death is abolished	244
Refusing freezing	246
Refusing revival	246
Distribution of resources	248
Minimising distress	249
Satisfying the wish to live	249
Worthwhile lives again	250
V Are the frozen really persons?	252
Notes	256
Suggested further reading	273
Index	275