

CONTENTS

PREFACE	page II
I INTRODUCTORY SURVEY	15
II THE ARGUMENTS FOR SENSE-DATA	26
1. Introduction	26
2. The Initial Analysis	28
3. The Argument from Differential Certainty	32
4. The Argument from Hallucination	37
5. The Argument from the Relativity of Perception	45
III THE PERPLEXING NATURE OF SENSE-DATA	52
1. The Dilemma of Attention	52
2. Ryle's Criticisms	55
3. Sense-data and Material Things	58
4. The Selection or Generation of Sense-data	62
5. The Category of Sense-data	66
IV PHENOMENALISM	74
1. Reduction to Sense-data	74
2. Sensibilism	76
3. From Factual to Linguistic Phenomenalism	80
4. Phenomenalism Without Equivalence	86
5. Observers and Landmarks	91
6. The Publicity and Persistence of Material Objects	94
7. Causal Properties	97
8. Categorical and Hypothetical Statements	106
V LINGUISTIC METHODS	111
1. The Alternative Language Thesis	111
2. The Value of a Sense-datum Language	117
3. Paradigm Arguments and Other Techniques	121
4. Ryle and Dilemmas	126
5. Malcolm and Certainty	136
VI THE REPRESENTATIVE THEORY OF PERCEPTION	145
1. Modern Neurologists' Statements of the Theory	145
2. Unplausible Variants Rejected	151
3. The Theory as the Best Hypothesis	155
4. External Causes	160
5. Primary and Secondary Qualities	163
6. Its Rejection as an Explanatory Hypothesis	171

VII	MIND AND BODY	page 181
	1. Interactionism	181
	2. Towards a Satisfactory Alternative	186
	3. The Identity Hypothesis	191
	4. Advantages and Assumptions	196
	5. An Objection from Parapsychology	203
	6. Further Objections Answered	208
VIII	PERCEPTUAL CONSCIOUSNESS AND JUDGMENT	219
	1. Preliminary Description of Perceptual Consciousness	219
	2. The Thesis that Perception is Judgment	223
	3. Some Difficulties in the Thesis	226
	4. An Idealist Defence Examined	232
	5. Alternative Accounts of Perceptual Consciousness	238
IX	THE PSYCHOLOGY OF PERCEPTUAL CONSCIOUSNESS	246
	1. Attention and the Sentience Hypothesis	246
	2. Stereoscopic Vision	253
	3. Learning and Experience in Perception	258
	4. Figure-Ground and Constancy	266
	5. Further Notes and Summary	273
X	FINAL ACCOUNT OF PERCEPTION	278
	1. Re-examination of the Physiological Evidence	278
	2. Statement of the Final Theory	285
	3. Objections and Elucidations: (i) Duplication	291
	4. Objections and Elucidations: (ii) Correspondence	295
	5. Conclusions	303
	INDEX	321