

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

	PAGE
Philosophy and science . . . . .	I
The method of philosophy empirical . . . . .	4
The problem of knowledge. Attitude of the empirical method. Idealism and realism . . . . .	5
The study of mind in metaphysics . . . . .	8
Alternative courses . . . . .	9
Mind and its objects. 'Enjoyed' and 'contemplated' . . . . .	11
Acts of mind and appearances of things . . . . .	13
The object distinct from the mind . . . . .	15
The mind not a contemplated object to itself. Introspection is not contemplation. Introspection and extrospection. The angel's view . . . . .	16
Experience of togetherness . . . . .	20
Elucidations. 1. Mind and body. 2. Range of objects. 3. Fluidity of every experience. 4. Enjoyments forms of attention. Images not mental. 5. Mental acts vary with the object . . . . .	21
The cognitive relation not unique . . . . .	26
Transition to problems of Space and Time . . . . .	27
Summary . . . . .	29

BOOK I

SPACE-TIME

CHAPTER I

PHYSICAL SPACE-TIME

	PAGE
Extension and duration . . . . .	35
Space and Time as experienced. The relational view of Space and Time . . . . .	37
The empirical characters of Space and Time . . . . .	39
Infinity and continuity as comprehended . . . . .	42
The interdependence of Space and Time. (1) Time and Space. (2) Space and Time . . . . .	44
Repetition in Space and Time . . . . .	48
The three dimensions of Space, and the characters of one-dimensional Time. Irreversibility of Time and a second dimension of Space. Betweenness of Time and a third dimension of Space. Order. A caveat . . . . .	50
Space-Time : (1) in mathematics . . . . .	58
Space-Time : (2) in metaphysics . . . . .	60
Pictorial representation of Space-Time . . . . .	62

CHAPTER II

PERSPECTIVES AND SECTIONS OF PHYSICAL SPACE-TIME

No empty or immoveable Space . . . . .	65
Perspectives and sections . . . . .	66
Perspectives of Space-Time from an instant . . . . .	69
Empirical verification . . . . .	72
Perspectives from a point . . . . .	74

CONTENTS

xi
PAGE

Relation of the perspectives to one another. (1) Differences of perspectives. (2) Their connection . . . . .	76
Total Space and Time . . . . .	80
Absolute Space and Time. Rest relative. Absolute position or motion . . . . .	81
The Principle of Relativity. Its metaphysical bearing . . . . .	87

CHAPTER III

MENTAL SPACE AND TIME

Introductory . . . . .	93
Mental time part of the same Time as physical Time . . . . .	94
Mental space and physical Space belong to the same Space. The place of an image . . . . .	97
Place of mental space . . . . .	100
Localisation of mental space ; how effected. Subject and object self. Subject and body referred to same place. Mental process continued into bodily movement . . . . .	103
The map of mental space . . . . .	108
Mental space-time : the problem . . . . .	111

CHAPTER IV

MENTAL SPACE-TIME

Memory-of objects. No reference to the perceived. A memory not a present object . . . . .	113
The act of remembering . . . . .	117
Quasi-memories . . . . .	119
The 'specious present' a succession. The present has breadth but not depth . . . . .	120
Enjoyed past and future enjoyed as past and future. Difference of 'as present' and 'at the present.' Illustration from memory of emotion . . . . .	124

xii                      SPACE, TIME, AND DEITY

	PAGE
What is present in an enjoyment of the past . . . . .	130
Mental space-time. Mental space and time involve each other. Perspectives of mental space-time . . . . .	133
The mental correspondent of Total Space and Time. Sections of mental space-time . . . . .	137
Mr. Bergson on Time and Space . . . . .	140

CHAPTER V

MATHEMATICAL SPACE AND TIME

Are points fictions? Isolation of points corrected by conception of continuity . . . . .	144
The spatialising of Time . . . . .	148
Mathematical and empirical Space. Not different as conceptual and perceptual; but differently treated. Geometry deals with figures, not Space . . . . .	150
Space and geometries of it . . . . .	156
Generalised 'Space.' A product of art . . . . .	158
Relation of the generalisations to empirical Space and Time . . . . .	163

CHAPTER VI

RELATIONS IN SPACE AND TIME

Spatial relations exist within Space itself . . . . .	165
Absolute and relational Space and Time . . . . .	168
Assumptions of relational theory. Contrast with empirical theory . . . . .	170
Mathematics and metaphysics of Space. Mathematics deals with extension; metaphysics with intension. Is meta- physics of the possible or the actual? The need for meta- physics . . . . .	175
Summary . . . . .	180

BOOK II

THE CATEGORIES

CHAPTER I

NATURE OF THE CATEGORIES

	PAGE
Categories and Qualities . . . . .	183
Why the categories are pervasive : not because they are due to mind ; . . . . .	186
but because they are fundamental properties of Space-Time .	189
Kant's treatment of the Categories . . . . .	190

CHAPTER II

IDENTITY, DIVERSITY, AND EXISTENCE

Numerical identity and diversity . . . . .	194
Defence against objections . . . . .	195
Being as the union of identity and difference . . . . .	197
Being and not-being . . . . .	198
Neutral being . . . . .	200
The Hegelian identity of being and not-being . . . . .	203
The law of contradiction . . . . .	205

CHAPTER III

UNIVERSAL, PARTICULAR, AND INDIVIDUAL

Introductory . . . . .	208
Singular universals . . . . .	209
Generic universals. Mental dispositions. Habits of Space- Time. Why Space is uniform . . . . .	210
Objections and elucidations . . . . .	217
Subsistence and existence . . . . .	220

xiv                    SPACE, TIME, AND DEITY

	PAGE
Universals not lifeless . . . . .	225
Universals and repetition. The problem of multiplicity . . . . .	227
The distrust of repetition . . . . .	230
The 'concrete universal' . . . . .	233
Postscript : Preface p. vii.

CHAPTER IV

RELATION

The category . . . . .	238
Empirical relations . . . . .	239
Sense of relations . . . . .	242
Relation and other categories . . . . .	244
Relations not merely mental . . . . .	245
Likeness . . . . .	247
Are relations internal or external? . . . . .	249
Intrinsic and extrinsic relations . . . . .	251
The ultimate question raised . . . . .	254
Alleged contradictions in relations . . . . .	255
Space and Time—their alleged inconsistency . . . . .	257

CHAPTER V

ORDER

The category . . . . .	262
A universal character of things . . . . .	264
Order and the other categories . . . . .	266

CHAPTER VI

SUBSTANCE, CAUSALITY, RECIPROCITY

A. SUBSTANCE

The category . . . . .	269
Identity of substance . . . . .	272

CONTENTS

	XV
	PAGE
Qualities do not interpenetrate . . . . .	275
Connection of qualities . . . . .	276
B. CAUSALITY
The category. Causality and Substance . . . . .	279
Causality and uniform motion . . . . .	281
Transeunt and immanent causality. Summary . . . . .	283
Cause and effect different. Cause prior to effect. Causality a limited relation . . . . .	285
Causality no power, nor force . . . . .	290
Objections to causality : (1) from logical atomism . . . . .	292
(2) from logical idealism . . . . .	295
(3) from metaphysics . . . . .	297
C. RECIPROCITY
The category . . . . .	300
Corollaries . . . . .	301
Mechanical and organic reaction . . . . .	302

CHAPTER VII

QUANTITY AND INTENSITY

The categories . . . . .	305
Measurement of intensity . . . . .	307
Comparison with Kant's doctrine . . . . .	309

CHAPTER VIII

WHOLE AND PARTS ; AND NUMBER

Whole and parts as categorial . . . . .	312
Number . . . . .	313
Number a universal . . . . .	314
Unity . . . . .	316
Number in extension . . . . .	317
Number and counting . . . . .	318

CHAPTER IX

MOTION ; AND THE CATEGORIES IN GENERAL

	PAGE
The category of motion . . . . .	320
Grades of the categories . . . . .	322
Point-instants and infinites . . . . .	324
Quality not a category . . . . .	326
Change not a category . . . . .	328
The categories have no origin . . . . .	330

CHAPTER X

THE ONE AND THE MANY

The categories indefinable . . . . .	336
Space-Time not subject to the categories . . . . .	337
Not a whole of parts . . . . .	339
Not a substance . . . . .	339
Space-Time as the stuff of things . . . . .	341
Categorial and empirical . . . . .	343
The One and the Many . . . . .	345