

Contents

Preface	vii
I. Introduction: Some Anglo-Saxon Philosophical Attitudes	3
II. The Alienation of Philosophy from History	13
III. Philosophy as the Search for Criteria of Intelligibility	35
IV. Philosophy of History as the Search for Criteria of Historical Intelligibility	53
V. Divergent Opinions of Philosophy and History	68
VI. Philosophical and Historical Questions about the Past	97
VII. Skepticism: Benign and Malignant	114
VIII. Use and Abuse of Skepticism in Philosophy of History	133
IX. Decision Procedures and Concept Formation	156
X. Evidence, Knowledge, and Belief	172
XI. Decision Procedures and Conceptual Change	188
XII. Speculative and Analytical Philosophy of History	207
XIII. The Whole Truth about History	233
XIV. History as Story	256
XV. History as Science	277
XVI. Epilogue: The Covering Law Model of Historical Explanation	309
Suggestions for Further Reading	319
Index	327