

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	vii
Introduction	1
CHAPTER I — 'Notions' as the Counterpoise of 'Ideas'	15
1. Coherence and Commonsense	16
2. The Philosophical Commentaries	22
CHAPTER II — Ideas	36
The Manuscripts	39
Idea of : (Moore and Russell)	43
Defining Characteristics of Ideas	48
Ideas and Things	51
CHAPTER III — Minds
Types of 'Notions'	54
Published Notions	57
The Self	64
Other Finite Spirits:
Part I — Men	69
Part II — Angels	72
Infinite Spirit:
Part I — The Problem	78
Part II — Locke and Malebranche	82
Part III — God in the Hierarchy of Spirits and God in Nature	84
Part IV — Some Consequences:
1. Infinite Spirit and Analogy	89

2. Induction and the Divine Language	92
3. Spirit as the Berkeleyan Model	94
4. Persons	97
CHAPTER IV — Relations
The Rôle of Relations, or Concepts	100
The Introduction to the Principles of Human Knowledge — First Draft	101
Some Variations: The Chapman MS	102
Letters to Samuel Johnson	103
Some Consequences	105
CHAPTER V — Sensation and Space
Kinds of Spaces	113
Perceived Spaces and Concepts	117
Extension and Divisibility	124
CHAPTER VI — Other Berkeleyan Concepts
Section I — Object and Likeness
Likeness of Idea and Object	129
Likeness and Identity	135
Section II — Identity and Time	137
Section III — Numbering and Naming
The notebooks	145
Leibniz: A Comment on the Principles	150
The Analyst	153
Appendix I — The history of the word 'notion' in Berkeley's writings	155
Appendix II — Structure of the Philosophical Commentaries	158
Appendix III — Note on the marginal signs in the MS notebooks	161
Index	163