

Contents

PART ONE THE FIELD OF ENQUIRY

CHAPTER	PAGE
I. THE METHODOLOGY OF METHODOLOGY
1. Introduction	3
2. The Generalization of Methodology	5
3. The Need to Question Criteria	7
4. Testing the Present Recommendations	7
5. Criteria of Correctness	8
Conventional	10
Logical	12
Empirical	12
6. Indeterminate Statements	14
7. Plan of Enquiry	16

PART TWO THE CONTEXTUAL ANALYSIS OF EMPIRICAL STATEMENTS

II. EMPIRICAL CRITERIA
1. Introduction	21
2. The Words 'Same' and 'Different'	22
3. Subject and Predicate	24
4. A Postulate about Fact	25
5. Criteria for Testing Linguistic Statements	26
6. Context and Purpose	30
7. The Dual Criterion	34
III. IMPLICIT DETERMINATION
1. Introduction	41
2. Environmentally Determined Contexts	42
3. Self-Determinate Statements	48
4. Combined Environmental and Self-Determination of Context	56
5. Inadmissible Contexts	57
6. The Universal Context Assumption	63
7. Summary of Explanation	64

CHAPTER	PAGE
IV. FACT, METHOD, AND ANALOGY
1. Introduction	67
2. Normal Usages of 'Fact', etc.	67
3. Factual Statements	69
4. Fact and Method	70
5. Everyday Fact and Esoteric Fact	71
6. Neutral Fact	72
7. Same and Similar	74
8. Describing and Assimilating	76
9. Analogical Statements	78
10. Methods of Indicating the Analogical Use of a Statement	82
11. Analysis and Expansion	85
12. The Scope of Contextual Analysis	88
V. TWO ILLUSTRATIONS
1. Bio-chemical	90
2. Philosophical	93
PART THREE
THE THEORY OF DISTINCTIONS
VI. THE MAKING OF DISTINCTIONS
1. The Purpose of a Distinction	103
2. Distinctions treated as Facts	109
3. The Need to Negate Distinctions	111
VII. THE TECHNIQUE OF DISTINGUISHING
1. The Size of a Unit	114
2. The Context as a Unit	121
3. The Philosophy of the Cosmos	122
4. The Theory of Precision	122
5. Distinctions as Methodological Conveniences	125
VIII. PARADOXES AND PUZZLES
1. Introduction	128
2. The Manufacture of Paradox	128
3. The Monte Carlo Fallacy	134
4. Infinity	136
5. Philosophical Puzzles	138
PART FOUR
TRADITIONAL METHODS AND EXPRESSIONS
IX. STRICT SPEAKING
1. Trivial Differences	143
2. The Strictly Speaking Argument	145

CHAPTER	PAGE
X. REALLY AND MERELY
1. Introduction	155
2. Reality and the Universal Context	155
3. Simply	158
4. The Reduction of A to B	159
5. Merely	159
6. Not Merely	161
7. The Valuation of Knowledge	162
8. The Demand for Complete Descriptions	165
XI. LANGUAGE AND REALITY
1. The Concept 'Reality'	168
2. The Directive Function of Language	168
PART FIVE
PHILOSOPHICAL METHOD
XII. PHILOSOPHICAL DISPUTES
1. Are Philosophical Questions Sui Generis ?	173
2. The Appeal to Logic	174
3. Underdefined Statements	178
4. Logical Analysis	180
5. Informal Implication	182
6. The Relation between Underdefined and Synthetic Statements	186
7. Testable Answers to Philosophical Questions	186
8. Combination of the Analytic and Synthetic Interpretations of a Question	190
9. The Scope of Deductive Inference	196
10. Normal Usage and Correct Usage	201
11. Intuition	203
XIII. PHILOSOPHICAL ANALYSIS
1. Analytic Sentences	205
2. Asserted and Mentioned Statements	213
3. Analyses treated as Descriptions	218
4. The Function of Surprise in Philosophy	222
XIV. THE NECESSITY OF LEGISLATION	223
XV. CONVENTIONAL AGREEMENT	228

PART SIX

THE GENERALIZATION OF METHOD

XVI. TESTS FOR TESTABILITY
1. Introduction	233
2. Identifying Subjects of Enquiry	235

CHAPTER	PAGE
3. The Generalization of Contextual Analysis	237
4. The Indeterminacy of the Universal	243
5. Testing Methodological Statements	249
XVII. CONCLUSION AND CONCLUSIONS
1. Doubts	253
2. Philosophical Conclusion	255
3. The Value of a Philosophical Theory	258
4. Further Fields of Enquiry	260
APPENDICES
I. The Realist Attitude to Distinctions	263
II. Some Problems of Terminology	269
III. On Strict Differences in Meaning	274
IV. Kant's Antinomy about Time	278
V. Acknowledgements	283
GLOSSARY	285
INDEX	289