SYNOPSIS	vii
UNITY OF SCIENCE AS A WORKING HYPOTHESIS, by Paul Oppenheim and Hilary Putnam	3
1. Introduction, 3. 2. Unity of Science and Micro-Reduction, 5. 3. Reductive Levels, 9. 4. The Credibility of Our Working Hypothesis, 11. 5. Past Successes at Each Level, 16. 6. Evolution, Ontogenesis, and Synthesis, 23. 7. Concluding Remarks, 27. Notes, 29. References, 32.
THE THEORETICIAN'S DILEMMA: A Study in the Logic of Theory Construction, by Carl G. Hempel	37
1. Deductive and Inductive Systematization, 37. 2. Observables and Theoretical Entities, 41. 3. Why Theoretical Terms? 43. 4. Structure and Interpretation of a Theory, 46. 5. The Theoretician's Dilemma, 49. 6. Operational Definitions and Reduction Sentences, 50. 7. On the Definability of Theoretical Terms by Means of an Observational Vocabulary, 53. 8. Interpretative Systems, 71. 9. Functional Replaceability of Theoretical Terms, 75. 10. On Meaning and Truth of Scientific Theories, 81. Notes, 87. References, 94.
DEFINITIONS, EXPLANATIONS, AND THEORIES, by Michael Scriven	99
1. General Introduction, 99. 2. Analytic Method, 99. 3. Definitions: Introduction, 102. 4. Dictionary Definitions, 102. 5. Erroneous Definitions, 103. 6. Dictionaries versus Encyclopedias, 104. 7. Definitions as Substitution Rules, 105. 8. 'Undefinable' terms, 107. 9. Inter-categorical Definitions, 112. 10. The Definition of "Definition", 113. 11. The Misleading Analogy with Mathematical Definition; The Actual Limitations on Redefinition, 116. 12. Definitions of Logical Constants in Symbolic Logic, 119. 13. Definitions as Analyses, 121. 14. Definability and Reducibility, 122. 15. The Concept of 'Completed Science,' 127. 16. The Acceptable Aspects of Reductionism, 128. 17. Definitions in Terms of Linguistic Function, 132. 18. The Analyticity of Definitions and Statements about Linguistic Function, 135. 19. Definitions as Rules, 139.

Contents

20. Dictionary Definitions as Reports of Usage, 140. 21. The Truth of Rules, 142. 22. Stipulative Definitions, 145. 23. Final Assessment of Definitions-as-Rules View, 149. 24. The Application and Invocation of Rules, 150. 25. Names of Individuals, 151. 26. The 'Stipulative' Definition of Individual Names, 155. 27. The Names of Fictitious Individuals, 156. 28. Existence as a Presupposition of Names, 158. 29. General Names and Scientific Concepts, 160. 30. Conditional Definitions, 164. 31. Statistical Concepts and Vagueness, 175. 32. Dispositional Concepts, Theory Language, and Observation Language, 180. 33. The Micro-Equivalents of Macro-Properties, 187. 34. Complicated Conditional Concepts; Psychological Dispositions, 188. 35. The Theoretician's Dilemma, 191. 36. Explanations, 192.

DISPOSITION CONCEPTS AND EXTENSIONAL LOGIC, by Arthur Pap 196

COUNTERFACTUALS, DISPOSITIONS, AND THE CAUSAL
MODALITIES, by Wilfrid Sellars 225

Introduction, 225. I. Counterfactuals, 227. II. Thing-Kinds and Causal Properties, 248. III. Causal Connection: The Dialectic of the Controversy, 266. IV. Toward a Theory of the 'Causal' Modalities, 285. References, 307.
