

Contents

Introduction	I
1. Miracles and Testimony	13
(a) Hume's Argument—Exposition	13
(b) Hume's Argument—Discussion	18
2. Descartes and the Idea of God	30
(a) The Argument of the Third Meditation—Exposition	30
(b) The Argument of the Third Meditation—Discussion	37
3. Ontological Arguments	41
(a) Descartes's Proof and Kant's Criticism	41
(b) Anselm's Ontological Proof and Gaunilo's Reply	49
(c) Plantinga's Ontological Proof	55
4. Berkeley's God and Immaterial Realism	64
(a) Berkeley's Theism—Exposition	64
(b) Berkeley's Theism—Discussion	71
5. Cosmological Arguments	81
(a) Contingency and Sufficient Reason	82
(b) The Regress of Causes	87
(c) Finite Past Time and Creation	92
(d) Swinburne's Inductive Cosmological Argument	95
6. Moral Arguments for the Existence of a God	102
(a) A Popular Line of Thought	102
(b) Newman: Conscience as the Creative Principle of Religion	103
(c) Kant: God as a Presupposition of Morality	106
(d) Sidgwick: The Duality of Practical Reason	111
(e) God and the Objectivity of Value	114
7. The Argument from Consciousness	119

8. Arguments for Design	133
(a) Hume's Dialogues —Exposition	133
(b) Hume's Dialogues —Discussion	137
(c) Swinburne's Restatement	146
9. The Problem of Evil	150
(a) Survey of the Problem	150
(b) Attempts to Sidestep the Problem	156
(c) The Paradox of Omnipotence	160
(d) The Free Will Defence	162
(e) Digression: the Nature of Free Will	166
(f) The Free Will Defence—continued	172
10. Religious Experience and Natural Histories of Religion	177
(a) The Varieties of Religious Experience	177
(b) Natural Histories of Religion	187
11. Belief without Reason	199
(a) Pascal's Wager	200
(b) William James and the Will to Believe	204
(c) Kierkegaard and the Primacy of Commitment	210
12. Religion without Belief?	217
13. Replacements for God	230
14. Conclusions and Implications	240
(a) The Challenge of Nihilism	240
(b) The Balance of Probabilities	251
(c) The Moral Consequences of Atheism	254
Index	263