

CONTENTS

Introduction page 9

PART I : THEORY OF KNOWLEDGE

Ch. I. What do we Know of the Outside World ?	23
1. The Problem Stated
II. What do we Know of the Outside World ?	38
2. The Answer of Subjective Idealism
*III. What do we Know of the Outside World ?	60
3. The Realist Answer
IV. What are the Origins and Nature of our Knowledge ?	107
Rationalism and Empiricism
V. Logic and the Laws of Thought	126

PART II : CRITICAL METAPHYSICS

VI. The Problem of Substance and Its Qualities : Theory of Judgement	155
VII. The Problem of Change : Teleology and Mechanism	170

* It is suggested that the chapters marked with an asterisk should be omitted in a first reading.

*Ch. VIII. The Problem of Causation : Hume's
Criticism page 207

IX. The Problem of the Self : Freedom and Determinism 229

PART III : CONSTRUCTIVE METAPHYSICS

Introductory : A Preliminary Doubt 253

X. Universals and Particulars : Plato's Theory of Ideas 255

*XI. Aristotle's Criticism : The World of Subsistence : Scholastic Philosophy 293

*XII. Developments and Applications of Plato's
Theory of Ideas 312

1. The Philosophy of Modern Physics

XIII. Developments and Applications of Plato's
Theory of Ideas 327

2. The Philosophy of Aesthetics : The Meaning of Beauty

*XIV. Outline of Kant's Philosophy 359

*XV. Outline of Hegel's Philosophy : Monistic
Idealism 402

* It is suggested that the chapters marked with an asterisk should be omitted in a first reading.

Ch. XVI. Developments and Applications of Hegelianism	page 432
1. The Problem of Truth and Error : Pragmatism
XVII. Developments and Applications of Hegelianism	465
2. The Philosophy of Dialectical Materialism
XVIII. Philosophies of Modern Science	495
1. Scientific Materialism : The Mind-Body Problem
XIX. Philosophies of Modern Science	540
2. Outline of Bergson's Philosophy
*XX. Philosophies of Modern Science	557
3. Outline of Whitehead's Philosophy
General Bibliography	588
Index	589

* It is suggested that the chapters marked with an asterisk should be omitted in a first reading.