

CONTENTS

FOREWORD	v
INTRODUCTION	1
PART ONE
THE FRAMEWORK OF ARGUMENTATION	11
§ 1. Demonstration and Argumentation	13
2. The Contact of Minds	14
3. The Speaker and His Audience	17
4. The Audience as a Construction of the Speaker	19
5. Adaptation of the Speaker to the Audience	23
6. Persuading and Convincing	26
7. The Universal Audience	31
8. Argumentation Before a Single Hearer	35
9. Self-Deliberating	40
10. The Effects of Argumentation	45
11. The Epidictic Genre	47
12. Education and Propaganda	51
13. Argumentation and Violence	54
14. Argumentation and Commitment	59
PART TWO
THE STARTING POINT OF ARGUMENT	63
I. Agreement	65
§ 15. The Premises of Argumentation	65
16. Facts and Truths	67
17. Presumptions	70
18. Values	74

VIII THE NEW RHETORIC

19. Abstract Values and Concrete Values	77
20. Hierarchies	80
21. Loci	83
22. Loci of Quantity	85
23. Loci of Quality	89
24. Other Loci	93
25. Use and Systematization of Loci; Classical Outlook and Romantic Outlook	95
26. Agreements of Certain Special Audiences	99
27. Agreements Particular to Each Discussion	104
28. Argumentation ad Hominem and Begging the Question	110
II. The Choice of Data and Their Adaptation for Argumentative Purposes	115
§ 29. Selection of Data and Presence	115
30. The Interpretation of Data	120
31. The Interpretation of the Discourse and Its Problems	123
32. Choice of Qualifiers	126
33. On the Use of Notions	130
34. Clarification and Obscuration of Notions	133
35. Argumentative Usage and Plasticity of Notions	138
III. Presentation of Data and Form of the Discourse	142
§ 36. Content and Form of the Discourse	142
37. Technical Problems in the Presentation of Data	143
38. Verbal Forms and Argumentation	149
39. Modalities in the Expression of Thought	154
40. Form of the Discourse and Communion with the Audience	163
41. Rhetorical Figures and Argumentation	167
42. Figures of Choice, Presence, and Communion	171
43. Status and Presentation of the Elements of the Argu- mentation	179
PART THREE
TECHNIQUES OF ARGUMENTATION 185
§ 44. General Remarks	187
I. Quasi-Logical Arguments	193
§ 45. The Characteristics of Quasi-Logical Argumentation	193
46. Contradiction and Incompatibility	195
47. Procedures for Avoiding Incompatibility	197
48. Techniques for Presenting Theses as Compatible or In- compatible	201

49. The Ridiculous and Its Role in Argumentation	205
50. Identity and Definition in Argumentation	210
51. Analyticity, Analysis, and Tautology	214
52. The Rule of Justice	218
53. Arguments of Reciprocity	221
54. Arguments by Transitivity	227
55. Inclusion of the Part in the Whole	231
56. Division of the Whole into Its Parts	234
57. Arguments by Comparison	242
58. Argumentation by Sacrifice	248
59. Probabilities	255
II. Arguments Based on the Structure of Reality	261
§ 60. General Considerations	261
61. The Causal Link and Argumentation	263
62. The Pragmatic Argument	266
63. The Causal Link as the Relation of a Fact to Its Con- sequence or of a Means to Its End	270
64. Ends and Means	273
65. The Argument of Waste	279
66. The Argument of Direction	281
67. Unlimited Development	287
68. The Person and His Acts	293
69. Interaction of Act and Person	296
70. Argument from Authority	305
71. Techniques of Severance and Restraint Opposed to the Act-Person Interaction	310
72. The Speech as an Act of the Speaker	316
73. The Group and Its Members	321
74. Other Relations of Coexistence : Act and Essence	327
75. The Symbolic Relation	331
76. The Double Hierarchy Argument as Applied to Se- quential Relations and Relations of Coexistence	337
77. Arguments Concerning Differences of Degree and of Order	345
III. The Relations Establishing the Structure of Reality	350
§ 78. Argumentation by Example	350
79. Illustration	357
80. Model and Anti-Model	362
81. The Perfect Being as Model	368
82. What Is Analogy?	371
83. Relations Between the Terms of an Analogy	375
84. Effects of Analogy	381

85. How Analogy Is Used	385
86. The Status of Analogy	393
87. Metaphor	398
88. Dormant Metaphors or Expressions with a Metaphorical Meaning	405
IV. The Dissociation of Concepts	411
§ 89. Breaking of Connecting Links and Dissociation	411
90. The "Appearance-Reality" Pair	415
91. Philosophical Pairs and Their Justification	420
92. The Role of Philosophical Pairs and Their Transforma- tions	426
93. The Expression of Dissociations	436
94. Statements Prompting Dissociation	442
95. Dissociative Definitions	444
96. Rhetoric as a Process	450
V. The Interaction of Arguments	460
§ 97. Interaction and Strength of Arguments	460
98. Assessment of the Strength of Arguments as a Factor in Argumentation	465
99. Interaction by Convergence	471
100. Amplitude of the Argumentation	474
101. The Dangers of Amplitude	479
102. Offsetting the Dangers of Amplitude	486
103. Order and Persuasion	490
104. The Order of the Speech and Conditioning of the Au- dience	495
105. Order and Method	502
CONCLUSION	509
BIBLIOGRAPHY	515
INDICES	543