

CONTENTS

	PAGE
Preface	5
Introduction	9
Chapter I. Dread as the presupposition of original sin and as explaining it retrogressively by going back to its origin	23
1. Historical indications relative to the concept of original sin	23
2. The concept of the first sin	27
3. The concept of innocence	32
4. The concept of the Fall	34
5. The concept of dread	37
6. Dread as the presupposition of original sin and as explaining original sin retro- gressively in the direction of its origin	41
Chapter II. Dread as original sin progressively	47
1. Objective dread	50
2. Subjective dread	54
Chapter III. Dread as the consequence of that sin which is the default of the consciousness of sin	73
1. Dread owing to the default of spirit	83
2. Dread dialectically determined in view of fate	86
3. Dread dialectically defined in view of guilt	92
Chapter IV. The dread in sin, or dread as the consequence of sin in the particular individual	99
1. Dread of the evil	101
2. Dread of the good (the demoniacal)	105
Chapter V. Dread as saving experience by means of faith	139