

CONTENTS

	PAGE
Preface . . . . .	ix
Introduction . . . . .	I

PART I

PRIMITIVE LAW AND ORDER

I. The Automatic Submission to Custom and the Real Problem . . . . .	9
II. Melanesian Economics and the Theory of Primitive Communism. . . . .	17
III. The Binding Force of Economic Obligations . . . . .	22
IV. Reciprocity and Dual Organization . . . . .	24
V. Law, Self-interest, and Social Ambition . . . . .	28
VI. The Rules of Law in Religious Acts . . . . .	33
VII. The Law of Marriage . . . . .	35
VIII. The Principle of Give-and-take Pervading Tribal Life . . . . .	39
IX. Reciprocity as the Basis of Social Structure . . . . .	46
X. The Rules of Custom Defined and Classified . . . . .	50
XI. An Anthropological Definition of Law . . . . .	55
XII. Specific Legal Arrangements . . . . .	60
XIII. Conclusion and Forecast . . . . .	63

PART II

PRIMITIVE CRIME AND ITS PUNISHMENT		PAGE
I.	The Law in Breach and the Restoration of Order . . . . .	71
II.	Sorcery and Suicide as Legal Influences . . . . .	85
III.	Systems of Law in Conflict . . . . .	100
IV.	The Factors of Social Cohesion in a Primitive Tribe . . . . .	112
Index . . . . .		130

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

PLATE

I.	Fishing Canoes on the Lagoon . . . . .	Front.
II.	Bundles of Fish taken over from the Fishermen by the Inland Natives . . . . .	22
III.	Obligatory Display of Grief in Ritual Wailing . . . . .	34
IV.	Ceremonial Offering of Yams, carried in specially made wooden measures . . . . .	58
V.	A Conical Heap of Yams is put up in front of a Chief's Storehouse by his wife's relations . . . . .	76
VI.	A ceremonial act of the Kula before the Chief's personal hut at Omarakana. The Ethnographer's tent in the background . . . . .	104