

Contents

CHAPTER	PAGE
1 INTRODUCTION	1
Part I IDEALIST THEORIES
2 EARLIER EXPRESSIONS OF CONTEMPORARY IDEALISM	7
1. The Nature and Background of Contemporary Idealism, 7. 2. Bradley's View of the Structure of Knowing, 9. 3. Bradley's View of the Objects of Knowledge, 15. 4. Bradley's Account of the Knower and the Relation of Knower and Known, 20. 5. Bradley's Interpretation of Truth and Error, 23. 6. Other Absolute Idealists of the Early Twentieth Century, 29. 7. Some Personal Idealists of the Early Twentieth Century, 33. 8. Comments Concerning Early Twentieth-Century Idealism, 35
3 RECENT IDEALISM	42
1. Perception and Ideas in Blanshard's Thought, 42. 2. Ideas and their Objects, Knowing and the Known, 46. 3. Blanshard's View of Inference, 49. 4. Blanshard's Conception of Truth and Error, 53. 5. Blanshard's Account of the Nature of Necessity, 57. 6. Other Recent Idealist Thinkers, 59. 7. Comments Concerning Later Twentieth-Century Idealism, 69
Part II REALISTIC THEORIES
4 AMERICAN NEW REALISM	79
1. The Nature and Ancestry of Contemporary Realism, 79. 2. Polemical New Realism: Ralph Barton Perry, 82. 3. Radical New Realism: E. B. Holt, 91. 4. Conservative New Realism: W. P. Montague, 98. 5. Other First-Generation New Realists, 106. 6. Some Second-Generation New Realists, 112. 7. Comments Concerning American New Realism, 118
5 AMERICAN CRITICAL REALISM	125
1. The Polemical and Mentalistic Critical Realism of A. O. Lovejoy, 126. 2. The Platonistic Critical Realism of George Santayana, 134. 3. The Materialistic Critical Realism of R. W. Sellars, 145.

CHAPTER	PAGE
4. Other Versions of Critical Realism, 147. 5. Comments Concerning Critical Realism, 155
• 6 ENGLISH REALISM	161
1. The Common-Sense Realism of G. E. Moore, 161. 2. The Causal Realism of Bertrand Russell, 169. 3. The Contrasting Realisms of Samuel Alexander, C. D. Broad, and G. Dawes Hicks, 181. 4. Other British Realists, 194. 5. Comments Concerning English Realism, 197
 Part III MEDIATING THEORIES
7 CONSTRUCTIONIST THEORIES	209
1. H. H. Price's Account of Perception, 210. 2. Price's Account of Thinking, 219. 3. W. T. Stace and Ledger Wood, 224. 4. Norman Kemp Smith and A. C. Ewing, 228. 5. C. J. Ducasse, R. M. Chisholm, and Roderick Firth, 233. 6. Comments Concerning Constructionist Theories, 244
8 INTUITIONAL THEORIES	250
1. Bergson's Intuitional Account of the Process of Knowing, 251. 2. Bergson's View of the Objects of Knowledge and Their Relation to Knowing, 257. 3. Comments Concerning Bergson's Epistemology, 260
9 ORGANISMIC THEORIES	265
1. Whitehead's Early Account of Knowledge of Nature, 265. 2. Whitehead's Subsequent Account of Knowledge of Reality, 271. 3. Comments Concerning Whitehead's Organismic Epistemology, 284
 Part IV PRAGMATIST THEORIES
10 EMPIRICAL PRAGMATISM	293
1. Background and Varieties of Pragmatist Epistemology, 293. 2. James's Account of the Principal Ingredients of Knowing, 296. 3. James's View of Meaning, 301. 4. James's Conception of Verification, 304. 5. James's Account of Truth, 306. 6. F. C. S. Schiller and Others, 310. 7. Comments Concerning James's Empirical Pragmatism, 314
11 INSTRUMENTALISM	321
1. Dewey's Contextualism, 322. 2. Dewey's Experimentalism, 326. 3. Dewey's Functionalism, 337. 4. Other Broadly Contextualistic Versions of Instrumentalism, 339. 5. Instrumentalist Theories Emphasizing Social Context, 344. 6. Operationalism, P. W. Bridgman, 348. 7. Comments Concerning Instrumentalism, 352
12 CONCEPTUAL PRAGMATISM	362
1. Lewis' Conception of the General Orientation of Knowledge, 363. 2. Lewis' Account of the Immediate Experience, 364. 3.

CHAPTER

PAGE

Lewis' Conception of Meaning and Analytic Judgments, 366. 4. Lewis' Conception of the Meaning and Confirmation of Empirical Judgments, 371. 5. Comments Concerning the Conceptual Pragmatism of C. I. Lewis, 380

Part V

ANALYTIC THEORIES

• 13	PHENOMENALISTIC ANALYSIS	391
	1. Background and Principal Branches of Analytic Philosophy, 391. 2. The Phenomenalistic Analysis of Moritz Schlick, 393. 3. Initial Phenomenalistic Analysis of Rudolf Carnap, 398. 4. The Phenomenalistic Analysis of A. J. Ayer, 402. 5. Subsequent Developments in Ayer's Thought, 407. 6. Gustav Bergmann, 414. 7. Comments Concerning Phenomenalistic Analysis, 417
14	PHYSICALISTIC ANALYSIS	426
	1. The Physicalistic Analysis of Rudolf Carnap, 426. 2. Other Physicalists of the Vienna Circle: Herbert Feigl and Philipp Frank, 440. 3. Some Representatives of the Berlin Group: Hans Reichenbach and Carl Hempel, 445. 4. Some Independent Physicalists: Karl Popper, Ernest Nagel, and Wilfrid Sellars, 457. 5. Critical Remarks Concerning Physicalistic Analysis, 467
15	PRAGMATIC ANALYSIS	476
	1. Willard Van Orman Quine, 476. 2. Nelson Goodman, 484. 3. Morton G. White, 494. 4. Arthur Pap, 500. 5. Comments Concerning Pragmatic Analysis, 504
16	ORDINARY-LANGUAGE ANALYSIS	512
	1. Ludwig Wittgenstein, 513. 2. Early Converts to Ordinary-Language Analysis, 522. 3. Younger Exponents of Ordinary-Language Analysis, 539. 4. Ordinary Language and the Philosophy of Science, 556. 5. Comments Concerning Ordinary-Language Analysis, 567
	INDEX	577